14 Years Have Passed

Fourteen years—a good chunk of a man's life—have passed since Dec. 7, 1941, when Japan attacked the United States, virtually wiping out the Pacific fleet.

So much of the unceasing sea of history has flowed over us in the constant tides—some high, some low—that the edges of that day have dulled.

The attack came to Americans with even less warning than to Pearl Harbor. It was Sunday. Most Americans were at lunch, or preparing for it.

The news that morning had contained no hint of war.

Indeed, the news was that the President had on Saturday cabled the Emperor in Tokyo asking his help in dispelling the dark clouds which threatened. The President did not reveal to the people the fear which existed in Washington that war would come. Also, the White House did not know the Emperor almost literally was captive of the war party in his country. They withheld any answer to the presidential cable.

Both Franklin Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull had warned the Army and Navy some five weeks before that the Far Eastern crisis was now out of the hands of diplomacy and remained a problem for them.

Surprise Attack

Two weeks before, the commanders had received even more definite word. Secretary Hull had suggested, in the light of Japan's proclivity for beginning wars by stealth, that all hands in the Pacific be on watchful guard. The secretary commented that we did not want to permit a surprise attack to "stampede the hell out of our scattered forces."

Because of the acute tenseness of the situation, the President sent, and made public the text, a hopeful cable to the Emperor asking for public assurance against war.

There was no answer.

At 1 o'clock on Sunday the Japanese envoys asked for an appointment with Secretary Hull. Eager to have it behind him, he suggested they come right over. The time was set for 1:45. It was 2:05 before they arrived.

Minutes before, the White House operator put through a call to the President. Lunch finished, he was eating an apple for dessert. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, said the operator, had an urgent call.

"Put him on," said F.D.R. ... and then, "Hello, Frank."

Later the President recalled that Secretary Knox spoke firmly, but in an almost casual form. "Mr. President, it looks like the Japanese have attacked Pearl Harbor."

"No!" interrupted the President.

"It's true, I'll read you the message."

On the President's desk the hands of the ship's clock stood then at 1:47 p.m.

Short Shift

Secretary Hull gave the envoys short shift. He did not, as was first reported, curse them as "yellowbellies" and "illegitimates." But he did shrivel them with his bitter and burning words which were the more powerful without profanity.

The nation began to move toward war. A call was placed by the White House to Winston Churchill. The War Department went into action. The President began to prepare his message to Congress, asking for a declaration of war. Men began to converge on Washington. The great machine of war, and of economics, was cranked up. Men went sleepless through that—and other nights—as they made inventory of our raw materials, strategic metals, and planned new factories, shipyards, war plants of all kinds.

In every city and village—in every home—dread, fear, hope, defiance, resolution, and—actually—a sense of relief—were among the emotions of the day. "It has come at last," said an old man in one city to a questioning newspaper reporter seeking reactions from men on the street. "We have talked about it (war with Japan) since I was a boy."

Now it is 14 years later—and Japan is occupied by our troops. We seek to build her into a bastion against Communist aggression.

Regents Say Games Up To Coaches

Feel Screening Not Necessary

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Regent leaders Tuesday were inclined to let the athletic association of Tech and Georgia do their own football schedule making, without requiring prior approval by the Board of Regents. This sentiment developed when a member suggested a board "screening of bowl bids."

Later the member, Charles Bloch, of Macon, decided to discuss the wisdom of his plan with coaches before offering it to the board. Other regents joined him in stating the board should not try to fix football schedules.

FACE DISCIPLINE

Meanwhile, Tech and Georgia were preparing to discipline students who participated in demonstrations against Gov. Griffin for trying to prevent Tech from playing the racially mixed Pittsburgh team in the Sugar Bowl Jan. 2.

Three University of Georgia students were listed as "definitely in trouble" and 20 others were up for interviews with the dean. Georgia Tech asked state, local and college policemen to give information on Tech students involved in disorders.

STANDING OVATION

The Tech faculty gave Tech Pres. Blake Van Leer a five-minute standing ovation when he entered a faculty meeting Tuesday. Van Leer said he was touched by the demonstration.

Van Leer and the governor's office both declared that no feud exists between the Tech president and Gov. Griffin.

Answering speculation that the resolution adopted by the board Monday would bar Tech and Georgia from future bowl games in the segregated South (after Jan. 2, 1956), members of the board's education committee declared this is not so.

HOT STATES

The resolution says teams from Georgia institutions shall abide by the laws, traditions and customs of host states. Although other Southern states have segregation laws, mixed teams do play in their bowls. There had been speculation the resolution would prevent Georgians from playing

A Paddling Proves Stray Dog Is Kay's

Nine-year-old Kay Reed got her dog back Tuesday and was happy about it even though she had to submit to a paddling in order to establish ownership.

Kay's father, P. T. R. Reed, said the dog, a registered collie, disappeared Sunday.

Reed learned Tuesday that a dog answering the same description had strayed to an address on Glenwood avenue, SE, and was being held there until the owner claimed it.

The Reeds went over and found the dog asleep.

"I can prove that's our dog easily enough," Reed said.

He seized Kay and began paddling her. The collie scrambled to its feet and with a growl seized Reed's arm.

The finder agreed the dog was Kay's.

After Look at Tickets, He Drives Thunderbird

A 54-year-old Ben Hill bookkeeper has won the Ford Thunderbird given away by The Atlanta Journal and Constitution to help promote night shopping.

The winning number was announced Sunday, but O. W. Gangstad, of 2330 County Line Rd., didn't know he was the winner until Tuesday morning.

Gangstad, an employee of American Iron & Metal Co., said he had several tickets for the drawing, but hadn't bothered to look at them until some fellow employees began talking about the drawing.

Gangstad walked into the office of George Biggers Jr., advertising director of The Atlanta Journal and Constitution, and presented the ticket. Minutes later, he drove away in the new red sports car.

Asked how he felt about winning the Thunderbird, Gangstad made his hands tremble and said: "Like this. All I could do was shake."

'IT WAS NO BULL FIGHT'

Televising Slay Trial Flayed by Duckworth

By ALBERT RILEY

Chief Justice W. H. Duckworth of the Georgia Supreme Court Tuesday denounced the "stage show" televising of a murder trial at Waco, Tex.

"A murder trial is no bull fight," declared Duckworth, who is chairman of the Conference of Chief Justices of the United States. The conference includes the Supreme Court chiefs of the 48 states and the Territories of Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

While other trials have been filmed for subsequent broadcast, the trial of Harry L. Washburn in the explosion death of a wealthy ranchwoman is probably the first to be covered by live telecast.

Washburn, 39, Houston businessman, claims he was 400 miles from the scene of the blast which killed Mrs. Harry Weaver at San Angelo Jan. 19.

After reading published accounts of the televising of the trial, the Georgia jurist issued this statement:

"In my opinion, the very essence of the administration of justice is thwarted when televised publicity is given to the operation of the trial of any case in a court of justice, and particularly one where a human being is on trial for his life.

"This statement represents my personal opinion, but I confidently believe it reflects the overwhelming majority opinion of the Conference of the Chief Justices of the United States, of which I am chairman."

Duckworth long has been an outspoken defender of freedom of the press. And after issuing his prepared statement he added that he believes it is the right and responsibility of "a free and unshackled press" to cover and publish reports of such a trial.

But the chief justice sharply denounced television coverage, which he termed "going hog wild" to make a "stage show" display of a murder trial so people can watch it "like going to a bull fight."

At the trial, District Court Judge D. W. Bartlett called the televising "a very good thing for the viewing public to see."

Gas Quells 1,000 Students Firing Effigy of Athens Dean

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, Dec. 6—Tear gas was exploded near crowds chanting obscene cheers here Tuesday night, dispersing a demonstration of about 1,000 University of Georgia students.

Clarke County police, Athens city police and state highway patrolmen tried to break up the rally. Several rounds of tear gas were exploded as the demonstration swirled around Ag Hill.

Target of the demonstrators was Dean William Tate, dean of men at the university, who Monday night attempted to quell a "panty raid" on women's dormitories here.

An effigy of Tate was burned on the running track as demonstrators shouted, "Down With Tate."

The tear gas was brought into play, when obscene phrases were hurled by the students in their outburst at Tate. The groups were of various sizes, 25 to 35, and as large as 300 to 350.

University officials indicated strong disciplinary action will be taken against the demonstrators, many of whom masked their faces with handkerchiefs. Streets in the Ag Hill area were blocked by police.

It was the second demonstration in two consecutive nights.

Eden May Seek Warning to Reds

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Anthony Eden may seek President Eisenhower's backing next month for a new Western appeal to Russia to revive the conciliatory "spirit of Geneva," informed sources said today.

Such an appeal would be coupled with a clear warning to Moscow that the West would not face idly a revival of Soviet penetration tactics in Europe or elsewhere, the sources said.

The proposal was one of the plans Eden was reported to be preparing for submission to President Eisenhower during his January visit with the President.

Dulles Charges Soviet Chiefs With Goa Plot; Khrushchev Accuses West of War Plans

Bonn Arms For Attack, Russia Says

By ROBERT ALDEN

The New York Times News Service RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 6—Nikita Khrushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, charged today that the Allied powers were preparing West Germany to make war against the Soviet Union.

In a formal speech—his first on his tour through Burma—the Soviet leader told a political meeting that many leaders of the Western countries did not even consider it necessary to conceal the fact that they are preparing the West German army for use against Russia.

"They have drawn Western Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. They allocate money for the armament of Western Germany. They supply Western Germany with arms," Khrushchev said.

The Communist boss who in the company of Premier Bulganin is on a state visit to Burma, compared the situation now to that existing just before the start of the second World War. He repeated the charge that he had made in India that the rulers of England and France had plotted to force Nazi Germany into a war against the Soviet Union.

"Are not today the same countries using the same methods, trying to push Western Germany to start on the path of war and new adventures?" Khrushchev said.

He pointed to the fact that Russia had never waged war against England, but that England "attacked our country in the past, as well as in our Soviet period." He referred to the War of Sevastopol.

SUPPLY RUGS FOR IKE'S FARM HOUSE
Blind, Bob and Betty Johnson Work at Loom

By EDWIN L. DALE JR.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 6—At 4:10 this afternoon James C. Hagerty, the White House press secretary, informed his regular afternoon news conference that he had "an unusual little story that Mrs. Eisenhower and the President have asked me to tell you about."

Thirty minutes later the quiet house four miles outside Gettysburg owned by a gentle, and blind, couple in their early thirties named Robert and Betty Johnson, was invaded by a swarm of 19 reporters and photographers.

"Would you ever have thought it?" exclaimed Betty.

"My goodness gracious," replied Robert.

SO DOES THE WORLD
Yesterday Mrs. Eisenhower had ordered seven small woven rugs from the blind couple by phone after seeing three bought by her personal secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree. Then, or previously, she had heard the couple's story.

So did the President. So did Hagerty. And as a result, so does the world.

The story begins in World War II and an exploding mortar shell in Germany—an important reason, according to Hagerty, why the President was particularly interested.

Johnson, a member of a machine gun company, had most of his face blown off by the mortar shell. He was totally blinded.

FACE AND FIANCEE

That was in 1945. Four years and 51 operations later Johnson was discharged from Valley Forge Army Hospital with (1) a new face, though a scarred and twisted one; (2) the knowledge of how to weave and (3) a fiancée. The present Betty Johnson had played the accordion and piano

$34.5 Billion For Defense Is Ike's Aim

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 6 (UP)—President Eisenhower and his top defense and budget advisers agreed today to try to hold defense spending next year to about 34½ billion dollars. This is the same goal they are shooting for this year.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said after a 90-minute conference with President Eisenhower that they made no major plans to keep spending at the 34½ billion dollar level in the new fiscal year starting next July 1.

"It will be tough," Wilson said. "We think we can make it."

If tax receipts continue high, the administration hopes to hold down military spending enough to permit a balanced budget and a possible election-year tax cut in 1956.

Some defense officials had talked of a 35 billion dollar military budget next year, half a billion more than the Eisenhower-Wilson figure. But they also hoped to trim their figure some.

When the President submitted his budget to Congress in January, he put the official military spending figure at $35,750,000,000. But he said he was confident Wilson could trim it by $1,750,000,000 before the year was out.

Reds Provoke Hate in India, U.S. Declares

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles today accused Russian leaders of trying to provoke India into using force in its quarrel with Portugal over the Portuguese colony of Goa.

Dulles told a news conference that Soviet Premier Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev, the Communist party boss, appear to be using their tour of India, Burma and Afghanistan for the purpose of spreading hatred and prejudice.

He said it was to clear such a threatening atmosphere that he joined Portugal's Foreign Minister Paulo Cunha last Friday in denouncing what Khrushchev and Bulganin have been saying.

STANDS ON STATEMENT

Dulles said he still stands behind that statement, which has caused vehement Indian protests. But he emphasized the statement in no ways takes sides between India and Portugal over Goa, the little territory on India's west coast.

Many Western observers in India believe Dulles may have given the Russians fresh ammunition for the propaganda war with the statement. Goa is a very sore point with most Indians and one influential American businessman commented in Calcutta today: "Dulles couldn't have done anything more effective if he wanted to push the Indians further away from the West."

Goa was the scene of bloody clashes between Indian demonstrators and Portuguese troops last August.

REFUSES TO YIELD

India demands that Portugal give up Goa, but Portugal thus far has refused.

Khrushchev and Bulganin, in speeches in India last week, said Portugal's retention of Goa was a "shame toward civilized people." They said India has a "right to oust" the Portuguese.

India's Prime Minister Nehru is understood to be gravely upset about Dulles joining in the statement with Cunha. Nehru told his Parliament the Dulles-Cunha communique was "an important matter of far consequences."

What the Indians primarily objected to was the statement's reference to "Portuguese provinces." Their reaction in general was that this seemed to bolster Portugal's claims—something which Dulles emphasized today was not the case.

Harriman Accuses GOP Of Plot to Weaken Labor

By A. H. RASKIN

The New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Gov. Harriman today accused ranking members of the Eisenhower administration of plotting to weaken labor and strip it of its political rights.

The governor told the founding convention of the unified labor movement that the country needed more, not less, political activity by organized workers. He added a slashing attack on the President's own handling of foreign affairs.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell struck back a few minutes later with an impromptu and highly emotional defense of the President's efforts to prevent war.

Mitchell declared that nobody had a greater desire for peace than Eisenhower "because he knows the horrors of war."

"Please, please, let us not deter him, hamper him in his intense, continual quest for peace," the cabinet officer begged.

Mitchell's basic talk was as unreserved as the governor's in praising the merger of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The labor secretary expressed hope that the new labor group would speak with a "loud and clear voice" in politics and that it would add millions of members to the 15,000,000 it now has. He specifically wished it well in its efforts to organize the non-union South.

CONTRADICTS STASSEN

Many of his views contradicted those voiced in Detroit Monday by another high Eisenhower aide, Harold E. Stassen. The President's special assistant had called increased political activity by unions a danger to the country's welfare.

The President himself, in a telephoned talk to the first session of the AFL-CIO, had cautioned the new organization not to suppress minority political views among its members.

In Washington a Republican senator, H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, said unions had no business endorsing congressional candidates. This took him a step beyond his colleague, Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who feels labor has "no right" to back presidential nominees.

LEAVES NO DOUBT

The union convention at the 71st Regiment Armory left no doubt of its own political sympathies. It interrupted Harriman 22 times with applause. Mitchell got a reception that was more respectful than enthusiastic.

The initial batch of convention resolutions was strongly anti-administration in tone. The President was accused of failure to live up to pre-election promises to rid the Taft-Hartley Act of "union-busting" provisions. His appointees were condemned in other resolutions adopted by unanimous vote.

Developments in the convention's own behind-the-scenes political maneuvers provided fresh proof that George Meany, AFL-CIO president, was boss in his own house.

Rumors of a bolt by the giant International Brotherhood of Teamsters were scotched by its head, Dave Beck. Other internal feuds seemed certain to remain under cover.

Harriman emulated former President Truman's "give 'em

U.S., Britain Caution On Berlin's Lifeline

Russians Hand Over Control Of Canals to East Germans

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN, Dec. 6 (AP)—Britain and the Soviet Union have waived control of canal traffic to Berlin, but the British announced they still hold the Russians fully responsible for keeping open the waterway lifeline to the isolated city.

In Berlin, Bonn and London, blockade of Berlin was lifted and all four powers pledged to restore traffic conditions to normal.

The shift of the canal administration from the Russians to the East Germans was made in October without any public announcement. The British agreed to it, they said, as a papersaving device.

IN RED HANDS

This means the East German Communist government will handle canal permits and other inland waterway problems through the canal bureau in Magdeburg. The West Germans deal with some paper problems on the subject in Hamburg.

The British, responsible for the canals in the West since 1945 because they lead to what once was the British occupation zone, emphasized that their step is only administrative and does not imply any recognition of the East German government.

1949 PACT

A spokesman said: "We still hold the Russians fully responsible for free movement of barges to and from Berlin in accordance with the 1949 Paris four-power agreement."

(Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference in Washington that the United States also will hold the Soviets responsible for maintaining all rail and barge traffic to Berlin.)

By the 1949 agreement the Soviet

Sen. Langer Asks A Good Question

Sen. Langer, a Republican, has called on the Messrs. Dixon and Yates to inform the Senate committee if they did or did not make large contributions to the Republican campaign fund before being given the Dixon-Yates contract without bids.

That is a proper, highly desirable move.

The Dixon-Yates contract, with guaranteed profits, was "directed"—without bids. It was pushed by the administration with great fervor. Then after about two years, the President learned from a Democratic investigation there had been something questionable going on. There was a "conflict" of interest.

The President ordered the contract dismissed.

It then developed that the Atomic Energy Commission, which also had been clapping hands about the contract, suddenly discovered that it didn't appear legal. The AEC refuses now to pay Dixon-Yates the more than 5 million dollars allegedly spent on "beginnings."

A Republican administration abandoned the contract.

A Republican-appointed AEC committee refuses to pay for preliminary work.

A Republican senator demands to know if Dixon and Yates made big contributions which might just possibly, if a man were suspicious enough, cause him to think such contributions, if made, may have enabled them to get the contract without bids.

More and more the Dixon-Yates contract "smells."

By all means let's get to the bottom of it.

Let Us Never Forget

Pearl Harbor's Lesson

Fourteen years ago today, Japanese planes flew over lightly guarded Pearl Harbor and dealt United States naval might a blow from which it was years recovering.

The skies were serene that tragic dawn. There was serious friction between Washington and Tokyo but two Japanese emissaries were en route to the United States, and the optimistic thought they bore olive branches.

That was when the bombs fell. Ships were sunk and many died. A terrible price was paid for unpreparedness, and the national habit of optimism.

The battleship Arizona was sunk that morning by a direct hit. She went to the bottom carrying around 1,200 of her crew with her.

The Arizona still rests in the mud of Pearl Harbor, a small part of her superstructure breaking the water. Those who died aboard remain there, entombed for the years to come.

This morning, as on other mornings, the flag will be run up a mast on the Arizona's superstructure. At sundown it will be lowered, a mute salute to the first of the World War II dead.

Of all our monuments and memorials the Arizona is the one that comes to mind today, 14 years later. It is a reminder for all time of the fruits of unpreparedness and of the dangerous virtue of giving the enemy the benefit of the doubt.

Chamber of Commerce Continues Fine Service

Throughout its 96 years, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has served the community with splendid and obvious results. Not only has it upheld the ideal of civic growth but has promoted splendid public relations for Atlanta in the state and nation.

The organization obviously has not oversold Atlanta. In fact, the city has outpaced even the most optimistic dreams of its leaders. This growth has created multiple problems, too, that were not anticipated to the extent they have developed.

Monday night the organization chose officers and directors for another year. Hix Green, Atlanta automobile executive, is the new president. He succeeds Donald M. Hastings, who served capably during the past year. The careers of these two leaders—Mr. Hastings is head of the famous seed company—illustrate the wide diversity of Atlanta activities.

Under its new leadership the Chamber of Commerce will continue its splendid work of helping to direct the city's growth.

Atlanta's development has amazed some of her sister cities in other states. Well-known is the reported remark of a Birmingham citizen a few years ago: "If Atlanta could suck as hard as she can blow, the Atlantic Ocean would soon engulf Stone Mountain."

This jealous Alabamian might be surprised at how near he hit at least one nail on the head with his remark. Hasn't he heard about the Port of Atlanta? If he hasn't, he will.

Meanwhile, the Chamber of Commerce and all who help direct its activities deserve commendation and wholehearted cooperation.

Merged Labor Unions Talk Sense on Politics

The nation will applaud the statements from New York and the leaders of the new organization of labor—the merged AFL and CIO, that they do not entertain any idea of attempting to "take over" either party.

The leaders of what is now the largest labor organization in the world—somewhere between 15 and 18 million members—reassert their faith in the two-party system.

The big union will, of course, be active politically.

No matter how one feels about it, it was unrealistic to suggest that labor should be barred from political activity when no one else is—save federal employees.

In the final analysis the test will be how labor uses its great, newly increased power. If wisely used it can make for a better country. If unwisely, it can destroy our form of government.

After all, it was abuse of economic and political power which drove men to form unions. If they should now be so short-sighted as to use their power greedily, the people will take it away from them.

Hans Wagner's Records Are Likely To Endure

John Honus (Hans) Wagner is dead at 81.

The news brings sadness to thousands of elderly baseball fans, especially those who were fortunate enough to have witnessed the great Dutchman perform at shortstop.

It's likely he was the greatest of all time. When he died he still held many National League records—the most games played, the most times at bat, the most hits, the most one-base hits, the most doubles, the most triples. He batted .300 or better for 17 years. The modern players have the lively ball and the pitchers today are much more restricted in their deliveries. The game deliberately has been made a hitter's game. Yet his records still stand.

He was a legend before he died. And as long as baseball is played and written there will always be something in it about Hans Wagner. And very likely there will be his name opposite some of the records of the National League as long as it endures.

Roadside Improvement Is a Fine Civic Idea

The safety and beauty of a highway depends in large part on the maintenance of its right of way.

The grading of shoulders, landscaping, and trees in their proper place all are part of the well designed modern road.

The stretch of road in Treutlen County leading from Soperton toward Dublin is the way all highways should look if possible. Regrettably, this stretch in Treutlen is the exception rather than the rule.

Screven County is pointing toward this ideal today under the auspices of the Sylvania Rotary Club. Today the membership turns attention to a two and one-half mile stretch of U.S. 301 from the Sylvania city limits south. Fifteen crews of volunteers will broaden the right of way, clear it of fences and unsightly signs, fertilize it, plant grass, pines, dogwood and crape myrtle.

The final result will be two and one-half miles of as beautiful roadway as can be found in Georgia, complete with a roadside park for the use of Florida bound tourists.

The Sylvania should be congratulated on their vision in adopting this project and their energy for carrying it through.

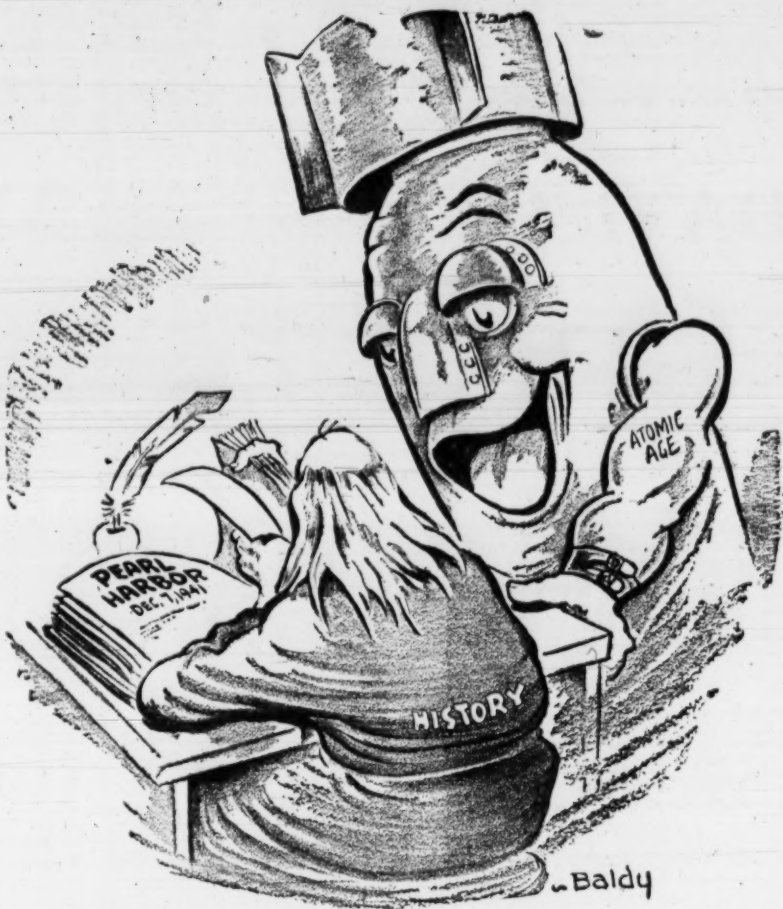

Nothing Beats Sand As Fire Extinguisher

"Fuel Added to Fire In Georgia Politics," says a headline on the front page of the Thomasville Times-Enterprise.

What a blaze that fire can be, too!

Fed on tar and paint and gas "saved" by gadgets, it can get hotter than the vortex of an H-bomb blast.

For that kind of fire, nothing beats sand as an extinguisher.

Frenchmen Must Have Courage To Change Constitution To Create a Stable Government

Thomasville — France is one of the great nations of earth—in ancient history, but not so in this Twentieth Century.

Since the end of World War II, France has not established a single stable government, and will not likely have one until she amends her constitution.

With 50 or more political parties, France is seldom able to elect anybody by a majority vote. Her general assembly has long been unable to choose a premier except by a coalition of two political parties.

One badly needed amendment to the French constitution is a provision for a runoff election between the two leading candidates in every election area where none receives a majority vote.

Another amendment should provide a fixed term of office for the premier, subject to removal only for misconduct in office.

The world is beginning to wonder if enough good French brains survived the world wars to rebuild France.

Turks Were Wasteful Of Human Resources

Decatur—News dispatches tell of an economic crisis in Turkey despite the fact that American tax money flows like a river in that part of the world.

Turkish economic conditions have been low since the first World War. There is one reason. The Armenians there, who were the most industrious, the most active and the most progressive people were sacrificed on the altar of jealousy and hatred of the so-called Young Turks. They were robbed, plundered and massacred mercilessly.

No nation can stay healthy, wealthy and prosperous by killing her most industrious citizens.

'Let's Find Substitutes For Contact Sports'

Freeport, N.Y.—College athletics are demoralizing. Time is wasted as the student body does not gain any physical advantage by sitting on the sidelines.

In games of physical contact, it is especially important not to infect racial issues as injuries are inevitable and no gentleman wants to harm an opponent who may believe he is disliked for personal reasons.

Running contests, throwing the shot, the high jump or rowing might allow racial mixtures. Let each student practice his own gymnastics. And Confucius said that a most necessary subject is how to drive a vehicle. This is not a team effort.

Mostly the Hot For Home Use

The French, I see by the papers, are thinking of building an atomic submarine. Not a bad idea seeing how much trouble they have keeping their heads above water.

And speaking of water, this could be the time to tell you that two showers, a shave and the breakfast dishes use 22 gallons of the stuff. If you turn one of the showers into a tub, add on six gallons more.

If you want to know how much water your household uses daily, multiply 25 or 30 by the number in the family. That will be the gallonage. And you can put it down in the budget book that 80 per cent of it will be hot.

The experts say there are about 140 uses for water in the home. That does not count the cold that is thrown on the ambitious plans of the youngsters nor the hot in which the husband is kept.

JEST FOR TODAY: The teacher in the country school was at the blackboard explaining arithmetic problems, and was delighted when the tall, gangling lad, her dullest pupil, was watching intently. Her happy thought was that, at last, he was beginning to understand.

So when she had finished she said to him, "You were so interested, Cicero, that I'm certain you want to ask more questions."

GALAXY POLL: By using new knowledge gained from satellite experiments, we should be able to establish communications with outer space satellites within 10 years. So say the electronics engineers, such contact would extend the range of the public opinion polls, but not necessarily the reliability.

This Cat's a Real, Genuine Antique

For no particular reason, except perhaps that a cat was sitting on my lap at the moment, I decided to look up the subject of cats in the encyclopaedia and find out where they came from. The domestic short hair, or common old house cat, the book said, is descended from a cat that has grown wild in Africa as long as people have been living in Africa, which is a long time.

These are the cats that the Egyptians domesticated and got so fond of that when a Pharaoh died they would mummify him, and his cat too, and bury both of them together. These cats, the book said, traveled with the first seafarers on the Mediterranean, catching mice in the holds of the Phoenician galleys.

Thus they were present and lending an air of approval, no doubt, as the great civilization of the Greeks was born, as Rome rose and fell. When Caesar's legions took Gaul and England, cats went along and from Europe and the British Isles they spread throughout the Western world.

So the cat sleeping on my lap is a notable cat, whose ancestry goes back further than any human being can trace his own origins—right back, in fact, to the earliest dawn of civilization.

This cat does not seem to have changed much since his great-great-great-granddaddy snoozed in the lap of old King Tut or snuffled at the camp fire of some scared centurion a couple of thousand years ago.

There is a description of this original African wildcat in the book.

He still runs wild in the valley of the Nile. He is a slim-built cat, the book says, gray, with black markings on his flanks. He has black rings on his tail and a black tip on it, and the pads of his feet are black right back to his heels, though where a cat's heel is I don't know exactly.

Anyway, I examine my cat, and bless my soul, he is a trim, slim-built cat, gray with black slashes on his flanks. And he has black rings on his tail and a black tip and the soles of his feet are so black it is a wonder the other cats do not segregate him. He is exactly the size and color that the granddaddy of all cats is supposed to have been.

So it looks like I am the proud possessor of a genuine antique cat. And when he passes on, I think I will have him mummified and sell him to Mr. Elliott, the antique man, as the original mouser that belonged to Ramesses the First.

Good Health Comes To All Who Believe

In considering the use of faith in healing and health, not only must we emphasize our belief and recognize the relationship between the practice of medicine and the practice of faith, but also our lives must be cleansed of those things which block God's Spirit from our lives. Recently I have enjoyed some correspondence with Harold Sherman. He wrote some complimentary things about my book, "God's Psychiatry."

But better is his book "Your Key to Happiness." He has a lot to say about how a man thinks and feels. A fine example comes out of his own experience.

He was engaged to revise an important radio presentation with the promise that he would be contracted for a permanent job. After months of hard work, he was dismissed and his material was used without credit to him. This resulted in both financial difficulty and humiliation for him. He grew so bitter that he actually had murder in his heart.

He developed an infection in his throat. He had the best medical attention but to no avail. Later, he became willing to surrender his hate, to both forgive and be forgiven and only then did his throat condition heal.

Study some of the words of our language. For example, notice the resemblance of the words "meditation" and "medication." You will find that meditation on God is medication for one's body. Consider the words "wholeness" and "holiness." One means complete health, the other means complete sinlessness.

As someone has put it: "He who formed our frame — Made man a perfect whole—And made the body's health—Depend upon the soul."

We must accept the will of God and His answer. Why is it that prayer brings healing to one person but not to another? James said, "The prayer of faith shall save the sick." It may be that our prayers are ineffective from lack of faith. Prayer is a science to be studied and some people are far more powerful in prayer than are others. Healing may not be God's will under certain circumstances.

But we have every reason to believe God's will is health instead of sickness, strength instead of weakness, pleasure instead of pain. When we believe in Him and pray with faith, when we do all within our power to use the means of health available to us, when we open the way for His cleansing and forgiving love, and above all, when we trust His wisdom in the answer, then a marvelous peace will be in us. A peace that eliminates our fear — our panic. Then the promise of the Psalmist is fulfilled for us. "Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and He shall strengthen thine heart" (27:14).

Russia Is Stealing U.S. Aid Program

WASHINGTON—Slowly we are beginning to recognize that in our competition with Soviet Russia to win people to our side and the side of freedom and free institutions, all sorts of factors are involved. Included is what to do about our opportunities to develop our economy and our institutions here at home.

Russia's stepped-up economic aid program to other nations, particularly offers she is dangling before the strategic Middle East and India, has directed our attention to our own foreign economic aid program as well as to the less expensive Point Four Program instituted by former President Truman.

How much Congress should be asked to appropriate next year for foreign economic aid now is a matter of controversy within the administration that was carried this week to President Eisenhower at Gettysburg.

The danger that we are falling behind in scientific education was recognized during the recent White House Conference on Education, as well as the inadequacy of facilities and the declining quality of our education generally.

In another area Russia is also reminding us how we have fallen behind by a change of policy on the part of this administration toward developing a natural resource—water. Russia has begun work on the biggest hydroelectric power development in the world—a 3,000,000-kilowatt installation—located on the Angara River in Eastern Siberia.

But the government now has stopped our own program of integrated development of our river systems, as symbolized by TVA and other great projects in the Pacific Northwest.

Ala. Rejects School Tax, Bond Bids

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 6 (AP)—Alabama voters rejected by an overwhelming margin today the Goodwin amendment which would place a graduated tax on gross incomes. The money would go to schools.

Also apparently rejected was a proposed amendment to the State Constitution to authorize a 110 million dollar bond issue for school building.

Returns from 1,259 of the state's 2,500 boxes on the Goodwin amendment: for 33,451; against 133,912.

The same boxes on the school bonds: for 33,451; against 133,912.

Other amendments of statewide application also were trailing.

Returns from 1,142 boxes on these amendments gave:

School taxes (No. 3): for 42,606; against 81,110.

Hospital tax (No. 4): for 25,918; against 81,507.

Hospital bonds (No. 5): for 35,491; against 81,866.

City improvements (No. 7): for 27,947; against 75,967.

No. 3 amendment would authorize counties and school districts to levy increased property taxes not exceeding 5 1/2 mills, providing the total of special county and school district taxes do not exceed 12 1/2 mills.

No. 4 would authorize most counties to collect a special tax for hospital and public health facilities, not exceeding four mills.

GM Dealers Offered 5-Year Contracts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—General Motors, under fire by Senate investigators, announced today it has offered its auto and truck dealers a five-year franchise in place of the present disputed one-year contract.

GM President Harlow Curtice made the surprise announcement as the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee resumed its hearings on the impact of the giant corporation on the nation's economy. He said the firm has offered the contract extension to all car and truck dealers.

Subcommittee Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) congratulated Curtice for the move, and said he hopes Ford and Chrysler "will take cognizance of what you have done and do likewise." But he said the action "does not relieve the contract of its other aspects which have been criticized" by some GM dealers.

O'Mahoney mentioned specifically a clause which allegedly allows

GM to cancel a dealer franchise without stating a specific cause. Curtice and Henry M. Hogan, GM vice president, said the firm cannot cancel a franchise "except for cause" under existing contracts.

Curtice, in a brief announcement, made public a telegram to all GM car and truck dealers advising them that one-year franchises effective Nov. 1 would be extended to Oct. 31, 1960, if they desire.

He said "the public has been grossly misinformed" by recent publicity given to "misleading statements" made by "a few complaining dealers." GM franchises, he said, always have been long-term arrangements but only the dealers have understood that.

"Because of the public misunderstanding and the possible damage to General Motors' goodwill, which in turn affects its hundreds of thousands of employees, its dealers, its suppliers and its stockholders," he said, "I feel impelled to do what I have not considered necessary heretofore—namely, to formalize a continuing long-term relationship with our dealers which for all practical purposes has been in effect in General Motors for many years."

Frederick J. Bell, executive director of the National Automobile Dealers Assn., said the new five-year contract still would be "unilateral in nature" and fail to give dealers the "equity" to which they are entitled.

Curtice and Joseph W. Burns, subcommittee counsel, debated whether, as Burns phrased it, GM ought to "give your customers more value" for their money because of the size of GM profits.

Curtice said the company's long-range profit objective is to earn "15 to 20 per cent on invested capital." Albert Bradley, executive vice president and chairman of GM's financial policy committee, said its 1954 return was 23 1/2 per cent.

duced by another manufacturer which rated as "distress merchandise" that was "not receiving the public approval." He added that meant GM dealers had to meet "long discounts" offered as inducements to the buying public. He did not name the rival company.

Profits of General Motors rose because of increased output and sales, Curtice said.

Hapeville Reelects Mayor; Coggins Gets Council Seat

E. E. Dixon was again elected mayor of Hapeville—for a two-year term—in the city election held Tuesday, unofficial returns indicated Tuesday night.

Number '13' Not a Lucky Hand Tattoo

The figure "13" proved to be very unlucky Tuesday for a 23-year-old Atlantan.

Ptl. T. R. Reed said he was on the fourth floor of city jail searching among the prisoners for a man wanted on a traffic court warrant. Reed asked a prisoner his name. "Robert Worthey," the prisoner was quoted.

Reed said he noticed the figure "13" tattooed on the prisoner's hand.

"Sure you aren't Charles Worthey Jr.?" Reed asked. "Nope," the prisoner was said to have replied. "Charles is my brother."

Reed said he recalled seeing the tattoo mark while arresting the man in March on a traffic warrant. He brought the prisoner down to be fingerprinted.

Identified as Charles Worthey Jr., of a Dixie avenue, NE, address, he was returned to jail on the original drunk charge.

Reed booked an additional charge of escaping from the city prison farm following the March arrest. Worthey also was held for the FBI for investigation of forgery.

Dixon polled a total of 742 votes against 425 for his opponent, C. B. Bonds.

In a three-man race for a two-year post as councilman for the first ward, Frank Coggins was elected.

Coggins polled 528 votes. His opponents were Regis Kessler, 455 votes, and Harvey Peppers, 150 votes. Perry Jackson, incumbent, did not run.

The second ward councilmanic seat held by I. E. Ellis was unopposed, but a tabulation was not immediately available.

Nearly 1,300 votes were cast in the election.

Kaye Here To Revive Vaudeville

By PAUL JONES

Vaudeville isn't dead—it is just taking a respite and most of the old vaudevillians are now living in Atlanta.

That's the impression Danny Kaye tried to leave in Atlanta Tuesday when he arrived here for a "sneak preview" appearance at the Fox Theater in behalf of his latest screen riot, "The Court Jester."

Shortly after he arrived here, Kaye had called a reunion of his old vaudeville cronies which included Albert Coleman, now an executive in the Dinkler organization; Albert's wife, Gwynn, a former vaudeville ballerina; Mrs. Joneal Kinsey of 2165 Stewart Ave., SW, who trouped with Kaye in the Orient.

Together they reminisced about the old Marcus Show which played at the Roxy Theater here several years ago and they placed local and long distance calls to other members of the once fabulous troupe which was the toast of the vaudeville circuit.

In between stories about the "old days," Kaye recalled he once played the old Capitol The-

"What type act? I did everything—danced, sang, emceed the show and helped the chorines on with their ballet slippers. When I wasn't on stage I was playing bass in the band."

About that time Bob Ferris, now an employee of the Capital City Club, who chauffeured Kaye through the front lines in Korea, knocked on the door. Danny and Bob spent several minutes recounting the Korean War incidents in which the two, riding in a jeep, dodged Communist bullets.

Throughout the evening, Kaye engaged in a perpetual comedy skit, ribbing his guests, kibitzing on the phone with callers.

Later at the Fox Theater he cavorted on the stage for 40 minutes to the delight of an overflow audience.

All in all, Kaye proved he is a very funny fellow.

Retired Officers Hear Davis, Elect R. C. Williams of PHS

Asst. Surgeon Gen. Ralph C. Williams of the Public Health Service was elected president of the Georgia Retired Officers Assn. at its second annual banquet Tuesday night.

Fifth Dist. Rep. James C. Davis, addressing the group, said, "We must at all costs keep our military strength up." Davis pointed out that the U.S. is devoting a major part of expenditures to its military program.

Rear Adm. H. A. Houser, retired, outlined the legislative program of the Retired Officers Assn. Adm. Houser is now with ROA's Washington staff.

He pinpointed two bills passed by the most recent Congress—the Career Incentive Act and the Tax Credit Act.

The Career Incentive Act granted a 6 per cent pay increase for 40,000 officers. The Tax Credit Act allows a tax credit of $1,200 for all military personnel under 65.

Tech Newspaper Swings at Griffin, Defends Demonstration by Students

The Georgia Tech student newspaper Tuesday labeled Gov. Griffin's Sugar Bowl request as "political" and defended the demonstration by Tech students which followed the governor's action.

The Tuesday issue of The Technique, semi-weekly campus newspaper, carried several news stories and editorials on the governor's and the regents' actions, and an editorial cartoon criticizing the governor.

A front-page editorial, headed "Editor Speaks: How High the Price?" asked, "Isn't it quite apparent that the issue has been raised only to further the political power of Gov. Griffin and the few other people making the absurd stand against the bowl trip?"

The Tech student body, "a large majority of which favor segregation," through the demonstration has made "the nation as a whole . . . aware of the fact that the Tech student body wants no part of Mr. Griffin's statement," the editorial continued.

The editorials criticized Rep. John P. Drinkard, who said he favored cutting off funds to Tech if the bowl game were played, and Regent Roy Harris. It gave "our sincere thanks" to Regent David Rice as "apparently the only man with the moral convictions to stand up against Mr. Griffin, Mr. Roy Harris, and company."

Best Driver Hits Dozers, Slowpokes

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (UP)—A man who boasts of having driven 1,500,000 miles without so much as scratching a fender said today that slowpokes and sleep are the worst hazards of the highway.

Rene Gouirand, 63-year-old inventor, has been proclaimed the world's safest driver by an auto industry testing laboratory and tomorrow he sets out to visit 10 cities to demonstrate his skill.

ONE TICKET

In his 33 years behind the wheels of autos ranging from an old Studebaker electric to a French racing car, he's received only one traffic ticket, he said.

"That was back in 1922, I believe," he said, "a cop on a bicycle chased me for going five miles an hour."

Gouirand, a manufacturer of air brakes for trucks, was interviewed after receiving a gold safety award from the car life testing laboratories in Washington, D.C.

He is making his tour under the sponsorship of the Studebaker company and safe driving councils in the cities he will visit.

From the first day he drove in his native France in 1902, Gouirand has followed a few simple rules.

DON'T GUESS

"Never take anything for granted," he said. "Try to anticipate what the other fellow is going to do. Keep to the right of the road except when passing and always signal so other drivers will know what you are going to do."

He also recommends punishing roadhogs and slowpokes who hold up traffic.

"Slow drivers are more hazardous than fast drivers," he said. "They are a menace."

Something can be done about these motorists, he said, but the other big highway evil—sleep—poses quite a problem.

"I recommend a return to the old-fashioned windshield that opens," Gouirand said, "so when a driver feels drowsy he can get a nice, fresh blast of cold air in the face."

Jack Gilchrist Takes State Liaison Post

Jack Gilchrist, farm editor of The Atlanta Constitution, is resigning to accept an appointment as director of public relations for the State Department of Agriculture.

Commissioner of Agriculture Phil Campbell said Gilchrist's duties will be to work with farmers and members of the press to improve public understanding of the department's activities.

He will assume his new duties on Monday.

Much of Gilchrist's time, Campbell said, will be devoted to persuading farmers to emphasize quality production.

While Gilchrist has been farm editor, The Constitution has won two Georgia Agricultural Extension Service awards and a Georgia Farm Bureau service award.

Gilchrist came to The Constitution from America where he was managing editor of the daily Times-Recorder for four years.

Emory Nurses' Fund Renewed

The Southern Regional Education Board has announced renewal of financial support of its project in graduate nursing education.

The Commonwealth Fund, for the third year in a row, is joining the W. K. Kellogg Foundation in supporting the regional program. Funds from the Commonwealth, amounting to $83,150, are divided between periodic seminars and allocations toward fellowships in six schools.

Schools to receive funds are Emory University, Vanderbilt

University and the Universities of Alabama, Texas and Maryland. Each will receive $12,000 per year. In 1954 the Kellogg Foundation gave approximately $500,000 to the six schools to be used over a five-year period.

Church Hub Readies TV Wing Pact

Trustees of the Protestant Radio Center Tuesday gave approval for letting a contract for construction of a $130,000 television production wing at the center at 1805 Clifton Rd., NE.

The contract is to be let Wednesday.

The television wing, which will house the only sound stage in the nation to be used for cooperative religious productions, will contain 11,000 square feet of floor space.

In addition to the sound stage, it will contain an editing room and office area. The wing will adjoin the present Protestant Radio Center building and will be constructed of red brick. The architectural style is contemporary; Henry H. Jordan of Atlanta is architect.

The wing is expected to be completed and ready for television production within six months, the Rev. Ernest Arnold, vice president of the center, said.

The new wing will bring total value of the center to $600,000, he said.

Arnold added that a few television programs already have been produced at the center and have been carried by 124 stations across the nation.

Due To Ask Expansion of Prison Plants

Expansion of Georgia's prison industries is expected to be recommended Wednesday in an incomplete report by the Legislative Economy Committee.

The recommendation reportedly will call for an enlargement of the present program whereby prison labor would be used to make more goods used by state agencies, but not for sale.

Appointment of an assistant director of corrections to manage the expanded industries may be included in the recommendation.

During recent hearings of the committee, State Department of Corrections officials said prison labor could be used to manufacture more state-used products at a saving to the state. Such an expanded program also would aid in the vocational training and rehabilitation of prisoners, they said.

The committee, which has yet to investigate operations of the Revenue and Health departments, will make a partial report to Gov. Griffin and will follow it with a supplemental report next month.

Recommendations being prepared for Wednesday's report are expected to call for the consolidation of inspectors in various state agencies and may propose consolidation of the Entomology Department with the Department of Agriculture.

Shopping at Midnight Puts Bachelor to Sleep

By MARJORY SMITH

LOCAL BACHELOR troubled with insomnia used to dread the lonesome wee hours when he'd wake up and not be able to go back to sleep.

But things are looking up since he read newspaper ads about a mail order house that invited customers to place telephone orders "any hour of the day or night." He promptly got a catalogue and placed it on his night table. Now when he has trouble sleeping, he ruffles through pages of the voluminous "wish book" and occasionally dials the store's number, chatting cozily as he orders some item pictured there.

"Got most of my Christmas shopping done," he reports. "And doggoned if I don't find myself getting sleepy—even in the daytime—when I see that catalogue!"

BIG GERMAN POLICE DOG loping purposefully down Spring street, ham bone clenched between his teeth.

DOMESTICATED — That's the word for an amazingly large number of Atlanta homemakers, who got all stirred up over reports here of Social Security-age ladies and their crocheting activities.

You don't have to be nearing the sunset years to have educated crochet needles, spokesmen for a younger generation of "old-fashioned girls" re-torted smartly.

Busy Mrs. J. Ray Kingsley of 3376 North Whitney Ave., Hapeville, wrote a brisk letter, "Do you know of anyone anywhere who has crocheted nine double bedspreads before he or she was 40 years of age?" Her epistle ended, "In a hurry."

Answer to Mrs. Kingsley's question: She did. And she declares, "I just might get busy on another bedspread this winter."

MRS. C. M. CHILTON of 4011 Sheldon Dr., NE, was first of a flock of history-minded Atlantans who rose to A. O. Brewster's challenge. Brewster had asked names of four men who served as U.S. president in less than five years.

Mrs. Chilton and the majority of telephone callers listed Martin Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, John Tyler and James K. Polk. (Van Buren was succeeded in March, 1841, by Harrison. But Harrison was an old man and the rigors of campaigning were too much. He died a month after his inauguration. Vice President Tyler took over, serving out the term. Polk was inaugurated in March, 1845.)

One caller, who identified herself as Mrs. J. C. Penny, said you can "turn it around from the other end" and list Presidents Andrew Jackson, Van Buren, Harrison, Tyler.

Wiley B. Newberry reported still a third list: Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield (assassinated), Chester A. Arthur (vice president who succeeded Garfield), and Grover Cleveland, who all served between 1881 and 1885.

OPERA STAR, WIFE PONDER MENU
Anna-Lisa and Met Tenor Jussi Bjoerling

Met Tenor Lazzes a Bit Here Before Concert

Met tenor Jussi Bjoerling stretched like a lazy cat in sunshine splashing the Capital City Club veranda and smiled:

"To come from Chicago's blizzard into this . . . and to have time on my hands. What luxury!"

His handsome blonde wife, Anna-Lisa, returned the smile.

"My husband has been so, so busy," she explained. "Now it is nice for a little in-between hour to be lazy."

Bjoerling, who will sing for Atlantans on the All-Star Concert Series Thursday night, flew here immediately following a concert in Greensboro, N.C. He has just finished a strenuous six-week opera season in Chicago's Lyric Theater. Before him is a string of concerts crowded right up to a Dec. 20 appearance in Carnegie Hall.

The Swedish tenor, said by Enrico Caruso's widow to "come closest" to her husband's famed voice, also is kept busy by television and radio engagements, his wife explained.

The Bjoerlings "ran into an old friend, Danny Kaye, at their hotel here. They plan to spend the time before the concert reuniting Atlanta acquaintances."

Mrs. Bjoerling, who frequently sings concerts with her husband and who met him when both were on the concert stage in Sweden, confided she is "missing the children."

The couple's three youngsters, Anders, 19; Lars-Olaf, 17, and Ann-Charlotte, 12, are in school at Stockholm.

"We were all together last Christmas," the mother sighed. "But this time we won't see them until April!"

Columbus Paper Backs Sen. George

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 7 (AP)—

The Columbus Enquirer, in a lead editorial to be published Wednesday morning, will endorse Senator Walter F. George for re-election in 1956, and will call on the veteran senator to make a public declaration of his intentions with regard to a new term.

"It is just about time, The Enquirer thinks, for Senator Walter F. George to make a public declaration on whether he intends to run for re-election next year . . . the editorial will say."

"And The Enquirer feels that the senator should announce that he definitely will be a candidate for re-election."

The editorial will comment that many Georgians seem to take it for granted that Talmadge will run for the Senate next year, and asks:

"Will Mr. Talmadge force those who have been his friends and also supporters of Senator George make a choice in next year's senatorial campaign?"

"If he does, he may find that forcing such a choice will cause tremendous resentment and contribute to his political undoing."

Cornelia Otis Skinner Puts Life in Variety of Roles Here

Cornelia Otis Skinner brought to life a wide assortment of the thoroughly entertaining people on the stage of the Tower Theater here Tuesday night.

Miss Skinner, who is noted for her versatility as an actress, author and lecturer, captivated a capacity audience with a series of solo character sketches.

The monologues, which she wrote, were filled with realism, warmth and an abundance of humor. At times the theater rocked with laughter. Whether she was portraying a confused mother trying to tell her young son the "facts of life" or an American debutante discussing her "divine" wedding plans, Miss Skinner was completely convincing in her role.

She was superb as an elderly gossip lady at a resort hotel who looked askance at a "new arrival"—a woman she considered much too pretty and flashy.

A highlight of the program was her series of Americans in Paris. These included a middle-aged woman—her main comments on Paris were that "Notre the Famous Artists Series. The Dame was dirty" and the coffee next production in the series will be "Don Juan in Hell" Jan. 20. Miss Skinner was presented by —KATHERINE BARNWELL.

Strangers—with a Mutual Friend!

Anyone who owns and drives a Cadillac will find this a familiar scene:

For it is not at all unusual for Cadillac owners to salute one another as they pass on the highway . . . or to exchange approving nods as they wait at the traffic light.

Cadillac owners, you see, know that they have at least one mutual friend . . . in the Cadillac car.

And the chances are that if they were to meet, they would find they had a great deal more in common than just their affection for the "car of cars."

For Cadillac owners, taking them by and large, are people who share a keen appreciation for the finer things in life.

And, generally speaking, they are people of unusual practical wisdom . . . who have found in Cadillac the most economical means to the finest end in motordom.

They have learned, for instance, how reasonable a new Cadillac can be insofar as original cost is concerned—actually within a few dollars of many so-called "medium-priced" cars.

They have seen for themselves how economical a Cadillac is to operate through the miles . . . and how dependable it is through the months and years.

And they have savored that final reward for choosing the "car of cars"—Cadillac's extraordinary resale value.

Perhaps, in view of these remarkable facts, the time has come for you to meet this wonderful friend of America's most demanding motorists.

We'll be delighted to introduce you at any time you find convenient—and to supervise a personal demonstration on the highway.

$1.4 Million Low At Milledgeville

State Welfare Director Alan Kemper said Tuesday the Jordan Co. of Columbus submitted the low bid of $1,430,000 for renovating the Powell Building at the Milledgeville State Hospital. The welfare director said that is the only building at the institution which has not been modernized and made fire-resistant. Gov. Griffin recently allocated $1,500,000 out of state surplus funds for the project.

FUTURE STARS—Julian Harrison Jr., center, chairman of the Kiwanis Club Boys and Girls Work Committee, presents awards to winners of the Stars of Tomorrow contest conducted annually by the Kiwanis Club here. Florence Ann Roper, left, 14-year-old tap dancer, and Stanley Clinton Yerlow, pianist, won the senior and junior contests, respectively.

Meet Plans Educational TV in South

Tentative agreement on a program aimed at helping solve some of the problems of institutions engaged in educational television was announced Tuesday.

The Southern Regional Education Board began pioneering in regional educational television cooperation three years ago. The SREB effort grew out of a meeting of ETV groups that met here to discuss and explore the best possible use of TV as a new educational medium.

PLANS OUTLINED

Representatives of 16 educational television stations, production centers and universities have met with the SREB board members during the past two days.

They drafted a memorandum of agreement which must be submitted to qualified participating agencies for signing. It calls for naming a regional committee on educational television. The committee then would meet to consider implementation of recommendations contained in the memorandum.

One of the things the committee would consider would be experimental use of educational TV in schools and colleges.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Some of these recommendations include arrangements for the distribution of film kinescope and live television programs of particular regional interest produced by participating institutions; arrangements for the exchange of program ideas, program materials, scripts, etc.; cooperative efforts in planning and production of television programs; a regional program of research in educational television; a regional program for training of educational television personnel and a series of regional seminars on problems and opportunities in ETV station programming and operation, and a regional program of experimentation in the educational uses of television.

Value of Building Permits in County Double '54 Period

Permits issued for construction in unincorporated Fulton County areas in November were estimated to be worth more than twice the total for November, 1954.

A report by Guy Eaves, county building superintendent, showed 46 permits for $927,007 in construction were issued. This compared with a total of $451,748 in construction for which permits were issued in November last year.

The report also showed, however, that one of the permits was for a $427,357 county school building.

$560,000 Jewel Loss Reported By Tycoon's Son

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Dec. 6 (UP)—Diamonds and jewelry valued at more than a half-million dollars have disappeared from the palatial home of the son of a diamond and mining magnate in this gem capital of the world, police said today.

Disappearance of the baubles valued at 200,000 pounds ($360,000) was discovered today, but police said they apparently had been removed during a period of three months.

They were the property of Harry Oppenheimer and his wife, Oppenheimer's father is Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, diamond and mining executive.

"I WOULD HAVE SAVED $229.11 IF I HAD ONLY CHECKED WITH MY T.I.S. BEFORE BUYING MY CAR"

Says Harold F. Owen, Atlanta Mechanic: "When I bought my new car, I was told that the insurance and finance charges would have to be included in the sales contract as part of a 'package deal'. These charges amounted to a total of $583.86 for 24 months. Later, when I talked with my regular insurance man (one of the local TIS agents) I learned that I could have saved a lot of money if I had gone to him before I made the deal. He would have gotten regular bank financing for me at a much lower rate, and the insurance would have been a lot cheaper, too. Altogether, I would have saved $229.11 over the two-year period.

"I was like most folks, I guess. I didn't know that it was illegal to force me to take the insurance as part of the deal. And I thought that all finance charges ran about the same and were controlled by law.

"It was an expensive lesson, but you can bet that the next time I get ready to buy a car the first thing I'll do is call my TIS. I know I can count on him to get me the best deal."

HERE'S HOW MR. OWEN COULD HAVE SAVED $229.11

HERE'S WHAT HE PAID
Amount financed (24 months)	$1754.50
Finance charges	366.86
Insurance (Comp. & $50 coll.)	217.00
Total	$2338.36

The saving for 36 months on the same basis would have been $370.22.

THIS IS WHAT HE WOULD HAVE PAID IF HE HAD FIRST CALLED HIS T.I.S.

Amount financed (24 months)	$1754.50
Interest	191.75
Insurance (Comp. & $50 coll.)	163.00
Total	$2109.25

DON'T MAKE MR. OWEN'S MISTAKE

The smart thing to do before closing your deal on a new or used car is to call one of the fifty-three TIS (Trained Insurance Specialists) in the Atlanta area. Any one of them will see that you get proper insurance

Boom Is Lowered
On 20-Yr. Taxman

By W. H. LAWRENCE

The New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Internal Revenue Service today filed charges of managerial laxity against its Chicago district director, a career employee with 20 years' service.

Ernest J. Sauber was placed on administrative leave pending a hearing on his case before a five-member "disciplinary board." Delbert J. Luippold, assistant director, took charge of the office which collects taxes for 26 counties in northern Illinois. Sauber was named district director in May, 1952, during the Truman administration. His retention in the post since the Eisenhower administration came to power has been a source of acute discomfort to leading Illinois Republicans who want the $12,900-a-year job for one of their own party members.

WILL FIGHT CHARGES

The Chicago director rejected suggestions he should resign and served notice he would fight the charges against him.

He was notified of the bureau's charges today by Russell C. Harrington, who was installed as commissioner of internal revenue only yesterday.

The precise charges against Sauber were not made public but it was known an investigation of his office has been under way since last May.

Last May Sauber was warned by Internal Revenue Service officials that "substantial improvements" must be made in the operation of the Chicago office. Complaints were made of alleged irregularities in tax collections, of poor employee morale and of discrimination against workers.

Sauber was told by letter that the Chicago district office averaged only 18 delinquent tax accounts closed during January and February, whereas the national average was 24 cases closed. It was said the Chicago record had remained "static" while the national average went up.

Under administrative regulations, Sauber has at least 10 days in which to file his answers to the charges. Then the case will go to a hearing before a board of five members.

Sauber, 48 and a native of Chicago, has worked for the tax collector's office in the Chicago area since 1935.

Negro Jailed in Slaying Of NAACP Chief in Texas

GONZALES, Tex., Dec. 6.—A 40-year-old Negro was jailed here tonight as officers searched for a motive in the brutal mutilation murder of a prominent Negro leader from nearby Schulenburg, Tex.

No charges had been filed early tonight.

The badly beaten body of Herbert Johnson, 58, head of the National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People unit in Schulenburg, was found yesterday 20 miles west of Schulenburg.

Officers said that signs indicated Johnson was beaten with a five-foot cedar fence post then tied behind his own car and pulled down a lane on his ranch for more than half a mile.

Sheriff L. O. McGinty said the killer apparently drove the car through a small ravine, backed the vehicle up beside Johnson's body, and set it afire. The body was badly burned.

County Atty. E. W. Patterson said when asked if there was possibility of interracial difficulties being involved.

NAACP Leader Says He'll Stay Despite the Klan

ELLOREE, S.C., Dec. 6.—A Negro leader said tonight he has "no idea" of leaving this southeastern South Carolina community despite alleged threats against him by the Ku Klux Klan.

L. A. Blackman, a contractor and president of the Elloree chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, told the Associated Press by telephone that he was not "personally" threatened by Klansmen at a Klan rally near here Saturday night.

But he said friends related to him remarks made at the rally—that it was "up to the colored people to see that he (Blackman) gets out" of town.

The contractor, a resident here for 17 years, said he arrived at the rally of robed Klansmen in an open field after the speaking was over. The Klansmen were still there but did not speak to him.

Face Cut, Fearing Spinsterhood, So She Sues Railroad for $250,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—A woman secretary, who said she has been left with the fear of being an old maid, sued a railroad for $250,000 today.

Miss Julia Reichman, 34, claimed a "missile" was thrown through the window of a train Oct. 14 on the South Side. She added that flying glass caused cuts on her chin, near her right eye and on her hands.

Her suit, seeking damages from the Illinois Central Railroad, set forth:

"As a direct and necessary consequence of having her face permanently disfigured and deformed as to mar and impair her heretofore attractive appearance and natural beauty, her chances and opportunities of marriage have been greatly diminished and otherwise destroyed, rendering it necessary for her to face the dread and apprehension of spinsterhood."

WIDOWER, WIFE LOOK ON

Cellar Yields Skeleton; Killed by Falling Brick?

CASPER, Wyo., Dec. 6.—Police officers dug the skeleton of a woman from a concrete basement today, then were told she had been killed by falling bricks.

A crude cross of wooden laths was clutched in the folded hands of the decomposed body.

Police Chief C. J. Carter said he was sure the body was that of Mrs. Barbara Alexander, 27, who vanished in July 1953. At that time no reason was given for her disappearance. But this afternoon Carter told reporters that Mrs. Rose Alexander, present wife of the woman's husband, said Mrs. Barbara Alexander was killed when a pile of bricks cascaded on her.

FILE OF BRICKS
The woman said in a statement, Carter reported, that when she called at the Alexander home, Barbara came to the door and stumbled. She fell against a pile of bricks in the yard and they toppled on her.

Carter did not disclose other details of Mrs. Alexander's story or explain why the body was buried in the basement and why police were not notified.

The police chief also disclosed that officers have been working more than a year in the investigation. Police dug for hours in the basement of the now-empty Alexander house to uncover the body.

HUSBAND LOOKS ON
The missing woman's husband, James Alexander, 48, and his present wife, were onlookers part of the time as officers slowly removed cement and earth.

Alexander is a machinist for a sugar company at Worland, Wyo., and formerly taught shop crafts at the high school in Casper. He declined to say anything about the discovery of the body and all Carter would say is that no arrests have been made pending further investigation.

U.N. Shelves S. Africa Race Inquiry

The New York Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 6.—

The United Nations shelved today further discussion of race discrimination in the Union of South Africa.

In two votes this morning, the General Assembly decided, first to discontinue the special U.N. commission on the racial situation in South Africa. The three-man body, although not recognized by the South African government, had reported for the last three years on race segregation there.

In the second vote the Assembly rejected a proposal by Costa Rica to retain the hotly controversial subject as an item for debate before next year's session. South Africa had withdrawn her Assembly delegation as a result of what she termed U.N. interference in her domestic affairs.

The Assembly retained in a resolution proposed by its special political committee expressions of "concern" over South African policies of apartheid (race separation).

Amnesia Victim Reunited With Dalton Wife, Child

DALTON, Dec. 6—Gerald Jerome Coin, who doesn't remember anything before November, 1934, returned here Tuesday to see the wife and two-year-old child he still could not recall.

The 27-year-old amnesia victim, a native of Alabama City, Ala., came to Dalton by bus from Hattiesburg, Miss., where he had sought aid of police in learning his identity.

He did not recognize his wife, from whom he has been separated 18 months, or two friends who met him at the bus station.

From the bus station, the party went to police headquarters where a conference was held lasting 20 minutes. Coin's wife, Janet, consented to let him return home with her.

Asked if he wanted to go home with his family, Coin said: "If they want me to."

The Coins' daughter, Jackie, who will soon be two years old, stared in wonderment at her father and the police. When told to hug her Daddy, she obliged with a big one.

As Coin held his child, he buried his face on her chest. Coin showed no emotion and displayed no facial expression when his wife approached him at the bus station. Friends of the family were convinced he was not faking.

Although she expressed doubt before going to the bus station, Mrs. Coin was convinced after meeting him that he was apparently a victim of amnesia.

Coin's identity was learned in Hattiesburg through fingerprints in Washington. It was further learned that his mother, now Mrs. M. B. Stephens, lives in Lindale.

Games Up To Coaches, Regents Say

against mixed opponents in these Southern states, but some regents said it means merely that Georgians will play "under the ground rules" of the host states.

Bloch, chairman of the education committee, stated early Tuesday he probably would ask that regents' approval be required on all future post-season games for Tech and Georgia.

However, Bloch later decided to consult with Coaches Bobby Dodd and Wally Butts before submitting his proposal to the board next week.

"I would want the coaches' ideas as to the wisdom, effect and necessity of such a proposal," Bloch said. "I would want to know what effect it would have on Tech and Georgia teams in the Southeastern Conference."

Bloch said he doesn't think the resolution on abiding by laws, customs and traditions of host states will flatly prohibit Tech and Georgia from playing in bowl games in the South.

REGULAR SEASON

Bloch admitted the racial problem would be involved in regular season intercollegiate games, but said he wouldn't try to require the regents' prior approval of these.

"I don't want to put the regents in the position of fixing the football schedules for Tech and Georgia," he added.

Regent Howard Callaway of Hamilton declared the scheduling of football games, both bowl games and regular season tilts, should be left to athletic associations.

GROUND RULES

He and Regent Everett Williams of Statesboro agreed that the resolution adopted Monday permits teams from Georgia institutions to play under the "ground rules" of host states—and does not flatly bar Tech and Georgia from future bowl games in the South.

The other member of the education committee, Regent Morris Bryan of Jefferson, could not be reached for comment.

From Athens Tuesday came news that three boys were in "serious trouble" for their part in a demonstration against a move to take Tech out of the Sugar Bowl—a demonstration which later turned into a party raid on Myers Hall, the freshmen girls' dormitory.

IN TROUBLE

Dean of Men William Tate described the students in serious trouble as one student who led the raid waving a pair of black pants (which he had obtained elsewhere), another who actually entered the dormitory and a third who "showed up with an effigy" of Gov. Griffin.

Tate said whatever action he takes will be strictly between the boys and their parents, and will not be made public.

Tate estimated that about 750 took part in the demonstration. He said identification cards of about 20 students were taken up. These 20 students probably will be dealt with mildly, Tate commented.

NO BURNING

The dean said no effigy of the governor was actually burned. He said he had the effigy in his office.

Tech Pres. Van Leer reported that the Committee on Student Activities is conducting an investigation at Georgia Tech. The head of the State Patrol, the Atlanta chief of police and campus policemen have been asked to give any information they have on student disorders, Van Leer said.

Gov. Griffin's office and Dr. Van Leer declared Tuesday there is no feud between them.

"There isn't any controversy between us," Van Leer said. "We are on the friendliest of terms."

Ben Wiggins, executive secretary to the governor, issued a similar statement, declaring that no feud exists.

Youths Tie Up Boy, Douse Him With Fluid, Set It Afire

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 6 (AP)—Police said three youths chained Earl R. Fryman, 17, to a tree tonight, doused him with an inflammable fluid such as lighter fluid, and set him on fire.

Fryman, his body covered with severe burns, managed to free himself and staggered onto Fairview Hospital where attaches said his condition was serious.

Detectives said the attack took place in Cleveland's Metropolitan Park near Fairview Park, a Western suburb. The hospital sits on a bank of the Deep Rocky River Valley which is part of the park system.

Fryman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Fryman, is a senior at St. Ignace Roman Catholic high school.

Marvin J. Schatz, 33, a friend of the Fryman family, said Fryman told police this story:

Fryman was picked up by three strange youths this morning as he was hitchhiking to school. He thought they were St. Ignace stu-

at Valley Forge with various entertaining groups and, blind from birth, had been attracted by the "Southern accent" (from northern Virginia across the Potomac from Washington) of the blind veteran who had talked to her in the hospital.

They lived in Philadelphia for a while and then a year ago moved to Gettysburg, resolved to raise chickens. Shortly afterward came a letter to Mrs. Eisenhower from Lt. Col. Rose Hepburn of the Salvation Army who had known them in Philadelphia.

POULTRY HARD WORK

Lt. Col. Hepburn suggested that Mrs. Eisenhower might want to buy eggs from the couple. For a long time nothing happened—except that raising chickens turned out, in Johnson's words, to be "a little too much for the two of us, not being able to see, to undertake."

Then two months ago they paid $190 for a large wooden loom and determined to weave rugs. Shortly after they had begun, they arrived at the door a Secret Service man looking for eggs. O'Malley was his name.

REPORT ON RUGS

O'Malley promised to put in his official report that the Johnsons wove rugs. Meanwhile, a Mrs. Gallenger, who had sold the Johnsons their loom, also thought Mrs. Eisenhower might like to know about the unusual local weavers. She too wrote a letter.

Yesterday Mrs. McCaffree, who reads the mail, arrived. When she returned to the Eisenhower farm she found Mrs. Eisenhower entertaining friends and showed them the rugs. And that was the story.

There is one trouble for the Johnsons. On the barely possible assumption that the report of their story from La Jolla to Bangor might produce more orders, they will be in tough shape. Mrs. Eisenhower's order for seven ran them clean out of stock and they spent all today until 4:40 weaving three of the Eisenhower rugs.

PLEASANT TROUBLE

But this, no doubt, is a pleasant kind of trouble. Said Hagerty:

"The President and Mrs. Eisenhower of course want to do anything they can to help a veteran, and a man that was injured or wounded in the fighting that was commanded by the President. So I am now telling you gentlemen about it."

Khrushchev Says West Arming Bonn for Attack

topol. "At that time we Russians did not invite the English to the Crimea so that they could destroy our Russian people on our Russian soil," Khrushchev added.

He mentioned also the British intervention at Archangel during the Russian revolution. He said: "They came to our country not as friends but as enemies to shed the blood of our Soviet people on our Soviet soil until they were thrown away from it."

The Soviet leader said: "... You should recollect the notorious directive given by Mr. (Winston) Churchill at the end of the second World War to his commander-in-chief at the European battle-front.

"At that time Churchill ordered that the arms thrown away by the surrendering soldiers of Hitler be collected and kept in readiness because they would possibly be of some use against the Soviet Union—though at that time the Soviet Union was an ally of England."

REFERS TO EDITORIALS

The Communist first secretary, referring to editorial complaints recently in the British press, said that some newspapers did not like "the truth about the past and I am sure they will not like the truth about today."

"One can ask, for example, why have the American troops occupied Formosa and other nearby islands, which are a part of the lawful territory of the Chinese People's Republic?"

Khrushchev also introduced the question of Japan for the first time during his Asian tour. "The peoples of the Soviet Union share the fears of the countries which are neighbors of Japan and which were victims of Japanese militarism during the second world war," he said.

He added that Russia favored a settlement of the problem of Japan which would result in the "impossibility of restoring aggressive Japanese militarism and of converting Japan into a nidus of a new world war."

CHIDES U.S. ON RICE

Touching on Burma's most sensitive problem—its complete economic reliance on the sale of its rice—Khrushchev chided the United States without mentioning that country by name. The United States, because of a surplus of its own rice, has not been able to buy any of the Burmese rice, although all of the Iron Curtain countries have concluded barter deals with Burma for her rice.

"Some countries," Khrushchev said, "have now a surplus of agricultural products and certain states intend to take advantage of this fact and to dictate their terms to Burma."

CONDEMNS POLICY

"The Soviet Union has always condemned such a policy. We shall do everything to buy from Burma more rice and other products. The money you will get from us for the sale of your goods you will be able to utilize for the purchase of goods in our country."

Back to Goal, Marvin Punted

By M. L. ST. JOHN

All the hullabaloo about the Sugar Bowl game obviously started out as a play for national publicity by Gov. Griffin—a bid which blew up in his face.

When the governor sent his surprise telegram asking for a special meeting of the Board of Regents, he apparently figured on national headlines dramatizing him as the champion of segregation. He obviously anticipated commendation from Georgia voters.

He didn't really expect Tech to cancel its contract to play Pittsburgh. Apparently he just wanted to put himself on record in a sensational manner. At no time did Gov. Griffin anticipate the reaction he actually did get.

THE UNFORESEEN

The hangings in effigy, the march of the Tech students on the Capitol and the Mansion, the harsh words from Georgians who have ruined politicians in the past for messing with their schools, the black eye given Georgia nationally by this unfortunate publicity—all of this, the governor didn't foresee.

The rapidity with which Griffin moved to "get off the hook"—and, at the same time, save face—proves he hadn't expected the reaction he got from his publicity. Griffin emphasized he wasn't trying to force the constitutional Board of Regents to do anything.

The board rejected Griffin's request. It did so in a nice way. It praised the governor to the skies. But, in the final analysis, it said "no." Tech will play Pittsburgh, Georgia and Tech teams in the future will play under the "ground rules" of the "host states."

HAND OF INFLUENCE

The rejection was no defiance of the governor—as Regent David Rice had sought.

Indeed, the board's action was suggested by Gov. Griffin, himself. Is that surprising?

There were reports that the governor contacted board members during their closed meeting Monday. Those reports are easy to believe.

At any rate, the governor had backed up somewhat during his press conference just before the board met. He said that although he didn't like it, he naturally couldn't prescribe the "ground rules" for games not played in Georgia.

Gov. Griffin is truly happy over the way the board took care of the situation. So naturally there is not likely to be any retaliation.

MAN OF COURAGE

David Rice established himself as a man of courage during this fracas. He spoke out bluntly against the governor immediately after the chief executive sent the original telegram. Later events proved Rice's stand to be the

Georgia Bar Forum To Open Tomorrow

Griffin telephoned the police station and offered to put up bond (if necessary) to free students who allegedly had joined in hanging him in effigy. That sounded like Marvin Griffin, himself, acting spontaneously. The telegram to the regents sounded like he had accepted the crazy idea of some adviser.

90-Year Service Total for 3 Who Retire

Three Atlanta civilian employees at Fort McPherson retired this week after more than 90 years of government service.

John H. Zimmerman of 1694 Kenmore St., SW; Clyde L. Copeland of 1395 Beecher St., SW, and Mrs. Elizabeth M. McLeod of 1071 N. Highland Ave., NE, were honored with Third Army certificates of achievement on their last days of duty here.

Zimmerman was "dean" of Fort Mac's civilian employees with 37 years of continuous employment by the Army in Atlanta and at Fort McPherson.

Copeland began work for the government in 1925, spending the last 10 years at Fort McPherson.

Mrs. McLeod was employed in the Third Army finance and accounting section for 23 years. All were praised by Lt. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey, Third Army Commander, for their "long, faithful and honorable services to the government of the United States."

Gas Mileage goes up AGAIN

new Variable Pitch Dynaflo!

WITH ALL the big excitement of Buick's 1956 styling and power and ride and handling—it's easy to overlook this fact:

Gas mileage in the '56 Buicks takes a big step upward. One reason, of course, is the new power plant itself.

Every new Buick cradles an advanced 322-cubic-inch V8 engine with the highest horsepower, Series for Series, in all Buick history. Yet every engine delivers more efficiency, and more usable power to the rear wheels—because each one has a new double "Y" manifold, and a new high in compression ratio.

But the major reason for the happy news in gas mileage—and for the new step-up in safety and thrills—is Buick's latest version of Variable Pitch Dynaflo.

In this airplane-principled transmission, you always had a gas-saving cruising range—and, at a switch of the pitch, a full-power getaway range.

Now Buick engineers have brought to this cruising range what they call "double regeneration." It simply means a new way to make flowing oil add to its own velocity to build up driving force.

So now, you merely nudge the pedal to part throttle and get new breakaway getaway. And since you get this quicker, safer response in your normal cruising range—where you don't use full power—you get plenty more miles from every tankful of gas.

But when you do need sudden safety-surge for emergencies, you just floor the pedal to switch the pitch. Instantly, you're at full-power acceleration—and it's the most thrilling safety measure in the land.

How about coming in to try the most modern transmission yet?

The absolute smoothness of this new Dynaflo is worth a visit in itself. So you can be sure you're in for a wealth of wonderful surprises—for that's just the start of the best Buick yet. Can you make it this week?

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

GOLFING GREATS—ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 6—Atlanta's Bobby Jones (R) huddles with Harry Moffitt (C), president of the Professional Golfers Association, and Ben Hogan at the annual PGA convention now in session. Grand-slammer Jones and Hogan dominated the golf scene in their respective eras, as no other golfers have.

Arthur DALEY

New York Times Sports Columnist

With Wagnerian Overtones

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—The news from Pittsburgh is disquieting. Honus Wagner, aged 81, is dead. If what follows seemed to be tribute unstinted, that's precisely the idea.

John McGraw always insisted that the greatest player of all was Honus Wagner, the only one of the superstars who could do everything with such extraordinary skill that he had no weaknesses. It's almost four decades since he played his last big league game and yet there hasn't been a shortstop worthy of mention in the same breath. Experts will argue about eight positions on any so-called all-time team. But the ninth position, short-stop, produces not even a discussion. It is Wagner's by acclamation.

HONUS WAGNER

How good was he? Well, the best-hitting shortstop we've seen has been Joe Cronin. But Cronin wasn't even close to old Honus, eight times the batting champion of the National League and a .300 hitter for 17 consecutive seasons. The famed Flying Dutchman had the anticipatory sense of a Lou Boudreau, the ground-covering range of a Marty Marion, the throwing arm of a Travis Jackson, the double-play dexterity of a Phil Rizzuto and the sure hands of an Eddie Miller. He was a composite, the perfect shortstop.

If Wagner didn't look the part, he acted it—which is more important. As a player, he was a powerfully built 200-pound 6-footer with craggy features, wide and sloping shoulders, outlandishly bowed legs, and arms which reached almost to his shoetops, ham-like hands dangling. He ran like a frightened water buffalo. In spite of his awkward appearance he was fast, as demonstrated by his 61 stolen bases one season.

For all of his obvious qualifications as the shortstop beyond compare, however, he was so extraordinarily versatile that it took him five years in the big leagues to settle down regularly at short. He could play any position better than anyone else.

"If Honus had stuck to the outfield," Fred Clarke, his first manager on the Pirates, once said, "he'd have been better than Cobb or Ruth or Speaker."

—He Hit and Threw Line Drives

One day in Boston the enemy had a runner on third with one out in the last inning of a tight game. Clarke halted play and trotted in from his left-field position to shortstop. He gestured over his shoulder.

"Go out to left field," he said to Wagner. "I'll take over here. If the batter hits one to you, throw out the man at the plate."

Honus made a spectacular catch and threw the ball clothesline fashion in a white blur to the catcher. It was a strike that retired the runner easily.

Wagner hit the ball pretty much the same way he threw it—line drives.

"I used to try to hit 'em down the foul lines," he once explained to this reporter, "cause there's only one fielder chasin' the ball. You have a better chance of gettin' extra bases that way."

It was a "triple" of sorts that gauded him along the road to stardom. Early in his career, Honus caught a beauty down the left-field line in a game against the Orioles. The Dutchman rumbled down to first where Jack Doyle forced him wide of the bag and tripped him. Hughie Jennings gave him the hip at second and John McGraw blocked off third base and tagged him out. Wagner arose without a word of complaint.

—The Meeting With Cobb in '09

"That's no way to play ball," raged Clarke. "These tough guys will ride you out of the league unless you give them, their own medicine."

In his next at bat Wagner rocketed one down the line again. Lumbering into first, he knocked Doyle bowlegged. Jennings, catching the glint in Honus' eyes, stepped out of his way at second. Only McGraw, indomitable and unafraid, held his ground. Wagner's slide knocked him almost into the dug-out. The Orioles never hazed him again.

Not until the 1909 World Series did Ty Cobb discover how tough Wagner had become. Ty singled and made ready to steal second.

"Out of my way, Krauthed," he snarled. "Here I come."

"I'll be waiting," said Honus so mildly that Cobb never heard him. The Georgia Peach came catapulting into second, spikes high. Wagner deftly sidestepped and tagged him in the mouth with the ball. They took three stitches in Cobb's lip.

Because he didn't smoke, he refused to endorse cigarettes despite the urgings of a friend who was acting as an agent.

"I don't want to endorse cigarettes," wrote Wagner, "but I don't want you to lose your $10 commission. So I'm enclosing my check for that amount."

Nashua, Belair Stable Put on Auction Block

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Executors of the estate of William Woodward Jr., announced today called for sealed bids to be received not later than 11 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 15, 1953.

The sale of the Belair Stable, one of the most prominent in the United States, has been rumored since the death of Woodward, Oct. 19. "All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for 10 per cent of the amount bid or they shall be void."

There have been various estimates as to the value of Nashua, who is the second biggest money-winning horse in the world. Nashua earned $752,530 by winning 10 of 12 races this year—the most ever picked up by a thoroughbred in one season. His total earnings are $945,415 and he stands second to Citation, who retired with $1,085,760.

During his brief racing career, Nashua won seven races which were worth $100,000 or more, including the great winner-take-all match race against Swaps at Washington Park last August.

Hogan Hits Barnes With $400,000 Suit

Says Publishers Used Pictures Without His Permission

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6 (AP)—Ben Hogan, one of golf's all-time greats, today filed suit here for $400,000 against A. S. Barnes and Co., Inc., New York publishers. Hogan lives in Fort Worth, Texas.

Hogan alleged that pictures of him were used without his permission in a book, "Golf With the Masters," written by Dave Cameron and published by Barnes last June. The Barnes firm previously published Hogan's book on "Power Golf."

Hogan, through his attorney, Francis W. Sullivan, said the pictures were taken without his knowledge while he was practicing for a tournament at the Baltusrol Golf Club, Springfield, N.J., and published without his approval.

Hogan alleged also that the unauthorized publication violated his property rights and caused him to lose prestige, business and good will.

The complaint asserted that the advertising and the book jacket are "designed to deceive the public into believing that the book was written and approved by the persons to whom it refers, including Hogan."

'JUST ABOUT' READY TO QUIT AS COMPETITOR, HOGAN SAYS

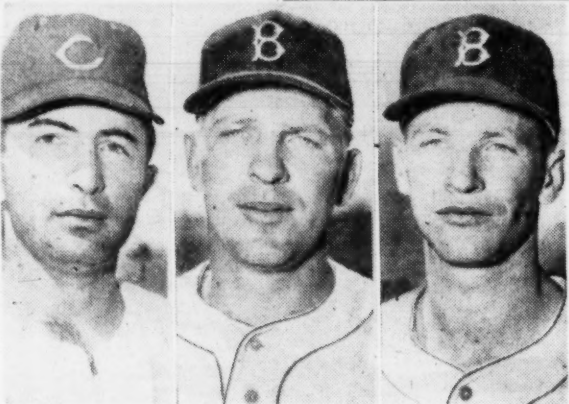

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 6 (AP)—Ben Hogan described the life of a professional golfer as a "hell of a tough tour" today and said he is glad he is "just about through with it."

"I don't think I'll be a competitor anymore," he said. But he added that when "the time comes along to quit, it's pretty hard to do." He didn't set a date for a definite finish to his career.

Hogan, four-time winner of the national championship, spoke at the annual convention of the Professional Golfers Assn. of America.

Bobby Jones, introduced as the greatest amateur golfer who ever lived, said the PGA's teaching committee is the most important unit in the organization.

"We should be most concerned in finding a simple and effective approach to teaching the game," he said. "As we hope to increase interest in golf, we must make it pleasant for them (students) at the beginning."

CHICUB RANDY JACKSON (L) BECOMES DODGER

Dodgers Obtain Jackson, Send Cubs Hoak, Moryn

National League Clubs Say Another Trade Forthcoming

CHICAGO, Dec. 6 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs today traded their long-ball-hitting third baseman, Randy Jackson, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for third baseman Don Hoak and outfielder Walt Moryn in the first of a two-part deal.

Officials of both clubs said another exchange of players will follow next week, but there was no indication what players would be involved.

Manager Stan Hack of the Cubs said that Hoak, who hit .240 in 94 games for the Dodgers, provided extra speed for the Cub infield and undoubtedly would take over Jackson's third-base spot.

To some observers, the 29-year-old Jackson, who batted .265 and drove in 70 runs last season, is expected to ease Jackie Robinson into considerable inactivity.

Cub personnel director Wid Matthews, who announced the trade, said that a bigger deal would have been announced at this time, but that Dodger vice president Buzzy Bavasi requested more

Bulldogs Play Bears Tonight

'New Look' Georgia Quintet Makes Home Debut at 8

By LARRY FOX
Constitution Sports Writer

ATHENS, Dec. 6—A new look in Georgia basketball will be revealed before the home fans Wednesday night when the Bulldogs make their Woodruff Hall debut against Mercer at 8 p.m.

It is possible that Coach Red Lawson's starting five will show only one man who was even on the varsity squad last season, although only one newcomer is assured of being in there at the opening tip-off.

He's Ray Allen, a slender sophomore from Augusta, who made his varsity debut against Tennessee last week with 14 points, tops for the Bulldogs. Allen stands 6-2 and will start at one guard position opposite alternate captain Morris Dinwiddie, the only sure holdover. Dinwiddie, a pint-sized Kentuckian, was last year's second leading scorer and got 12 in the 86-67 loss to the Vols.

Rest of the lineup for Georgia is unsettled with alternates listed at all three positions. The center will be either Bill Ensey, a husky junior, or Henry Cabaniss, a slender sophomore. Both stand 6-5 and with the Bulldogs holding a height advantage over Mercer, will probably alternate. Against a taller team, they figure to be in there together most of the way.

At one forward, junior college graduate Curtis Gleaton and returning squad member George Bell are the alternates while at the other the choice is between sophomore Terry Hagan and senior Horace Knight, the team captain.

This is the second game of the season for Mercer, which routed Oglethorpe, 107-66, in its opener last week.

The Bears of Coach Jim Cowen can be dangerous, despite their small-school status, and last year split in two decisions with the Bulldogs.

Big man for the Bears this season will probably be a familiar face to some Georgia fans. He's Billy Joe Groover, 6-4 senior from Canton who went from Brewster Parker Junior College to Mercer via a six-months' tour here in Athens. He quit the Bulldog squad during mid-winter vacation and enrolled at the Macon school.

Other good bets for the Bears are Cary Moore and forward Woody Richardson, both 6-2 sophomores. Other starters are guard Roger Bolton, a former Georgia Tech squad man, and forward Bobby Graham.

Only one other game involving a Southern Conference team is on Wednesday's card. That one sends Tennessee, winner of its only two starts, to Cincinnati, Thursday, Rollins is at Florida.

Wagner Is Mourned By Diamond World

'The Greatest I Ever Knew,' Says Cobb Joining Tributes

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6 (AP)—Time ran out for Honus Wagner today, and the baseball world mourned one of its all-time great stars.

The bandy-legged, broad-shouldered Honus died quietly in his sleep at the modest home in suburban Carnegie where he had been confined for months by the illnesses of old age. He was 81.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Tonight, as the first of the baseball faithful and his legion of friends began filing past his bier, expressions of tribute and regret at Wagner's passing came from many of the newer generation of the sport.

Wagner "always was a great credit to baseball," said Commissioner Ford Frick. "His feats will live forever. His death is a great loss to the game."

The great Pittsburgh Pirate shortstop indeed had left his mark on the sport that was his love and all his life. Still written in the record books are many of his accomplishments, likely to stand for years or maybe so long as baseball is played.

Honus, who ended his career as a major league batter and fielder in 1917, was one of the first choices for the sport's Hall of Fame 19 years later.

Playing in the era of a "dead" ball and great pitchers who threw spitballs, "shine" balls and other deliveries now barred, he led the National League in batting eight years, compiled a lifetime .329 average and never fell below .300 in 17 successive major league seasons.

He played 100 or more games for 19 years in succession, owns league records with 2,785 games, 10,427 times at bat, 1,740 runs scored, 3,430 base hits, 4,888 total bases.

After his bowed legs churned up astonishing speed as he stole 720 bases and appeared countless batted balls. His huge hands seemed to become almost a target for balls hit toward his defensive position. His throwing arm fired the ball like a rifle shot.

Great batter, great fielder, great runner, great competitor, Wagner had all that was needed on every score in his playing days.

New testimony to that came late today from another baseball immortal, and one of Honus' playing-day rivals.

"Honus Wagner was the greatest ball player I ever knew," said Ty Cobb. "He was a fine competitor and a true gentleman. It was Wagner who helped establish the real foundations of baseball."

IKE WAS ARDENT ADMIRER

Wagner Wouldn't Accept Raise, Claimed He Wasn't Worth 10 Cs

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6 (AP)—Among the baseball anecdotes about Honus Wagner, told again following his death Tuesday, was this one of his early playing days:

"I'm covering third for Louisville back in '97," Honus used to say, "when Joe Gore, left fielder for the Giants, wallops his second homer."

"And as he passes third I say 'nice hit' and Gore he yells back 'go to hell.'"

"That was the first time any big-league player ever spoke to me on the diamond."

Baseball salaries weren't always what they are today. Wagner drew $300 a month his first year with the Pittsburgh Pirates, $5,000 a season for the next five years, and a top of $10,000 in 1908. He once refused a $10,000 contract, saying $7,500 was all he was worth.

Honus was a major league manager once, for one of the shortest terms on record.

It was in 1918, after his playing days had ended. Owner Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates fired Manager Jimmy Callahan in June and asked Honus to take over. Honus, after three days, told Dreyfuss it wasn't his type of job, and Hugo Bezdek was picked to succeed him.

The huge hands of Honus Wagner often looked like scoop shovels when he was grabbing infield grounders. But at least once they got him into difficulty.

Honus had reached into his hip pocket for a chew of his favorite plug tobacco, but couldn't get his hand out again. A friend finally had to cut the pocket off

Honus' trousers to set him free.

The box score of Wagner's first major league game showed him playing center field and batting third for Louisville against Washington July 19, 1897. He was at bat twice, officially, connected for a single, had a sacrifice and a stolen base, made two putouts and an assist as Louisville won, 6-2.

One of Wagner's youthful admirers during his playing days was Dwight D. Eisenhower, who, as President of the United States wrote Honus on his 80th birthday:

"I venture to say that your name and the records you established are as well known to the boys of today as they were to me.

"That, I think, must prove that you are truly one of baseball's immortal heroes."

Oklahoma, Terps Match Top Marks

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—When Oklahoma and Maryland meet in the Orange Bowl, Jan. 2, it will be the nation's leading rushing team against the team with the nation's tightest defense against rushing.

The statistics read like chapter two of an old, familiar story because the same teams held the same titles when they clashed in the same place two years ago. That time Oklahoma proved it was pretty good on defense, too, by winning 7-0.

The Sooners, in fact, have showed a remarkable mastery of the ground game—in both directions—during a 10-year period in which they have been one of the nation's top teams.

Final NCAA statistics for the 1955 season revealed that Oklahoma was among the top 10 in rushing offense for the 30th straight year and in the top 10 in rushing defense for the fifth time in 10 years. The over-all figures for that period show Oklahoma on top in both departments.

In 100 games, the Sooners averaged 294.5 yards per game and 5.12 yards per play just by running. Defensively, they held their opponents to 106.7 yards per game and 2.59 yards per play on the ground.

Nearest to them offensively were Notre Dame, 261 yards per game and 4.55 per play, and Army 251 and 4.90. Defensively it was Maryland, 112 per game and 2.76 per play and Notre Dame, 118 and 2.95.

Maryland held its opponents to 75.9 yards a game on the ground, eight yards a game better than its 1953 defensive figure.

BOARD OF REGENTS CHAIRMAN DENIES ED PRICE TO BE FIRED

MIDLAND, Tex., Dec. 6 (AP)—Tom Sealy, chairman of the board of regents of the University of Texas, said today football coach Ed Price had not offered his resignation, that no demand had been made upon him and no demand would be made.

Sealy said Price had asked him for a conference tomorrow to talk over the athletic situation at the university "but I do not know what he has in mind. If he does resign, I will, of course, have to call a meeting of the board to consider it."

Sealy said there was no communication in any form from Price at a meeting of the board in Houston last week. "There is no one interested in firing Ed

4-AA Plans For Adding New Teams

Set Division For AAA Loop

A meeting of football coaches from Region 4-AA, which next year will be 4-AAA, was held at Marietta Tuesday to set up plans for the switchover.

Coaches agreed to subdivide the region with newcomers Athens, Southwest DeKalb and Marietta playing in the Southern Division with Russell, Decatur and Griffin. Northern Division will be made up of Rossville, Rome, Dalton, Marietta and Cedartown.

The Northern grid champion will be the home team, by virtue of winning a coin toss, when the title playoff arrives in 1956. A penetration system setup, similar to that used by the Atlanta City League, was adopted, eliminating any chance of a tie—and playoff—within either sub-region.

Should two teams tie in regular season, a winner will be determined by the penetration system now in effect. Should two teams finish with identical won-lost records, the team that won when those two eleven's played each other will represent the sub-region in the playoff.—ROBERTS

HOUSTON OFFICIALS HOPEFUL OF LANDING SEC BERTH

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 6 (AP)—University of Houston officials depart Tuesday night for Nashville, Tenn., where expansion of the 12-member Southeastern Athletic Conference will be under discussion.

Houston and Miami have been rumored as possible additions.

"I'm not holding my breath but we are further along than I anticipated," said Harry Fouke, Houston athletic director who has spent three of the past four weeks visiting Southeastern schools.

Southeastern athletic directors are to meet Thursday morning and make a recommendation to faculty representatives on whether invitations should be issued for expansion. "After the athletic directors meet we will know whether to go home or stick around," Fouke said.

UNC Athletic Council Meets, Defers Decision on Barclay

'Firing' Group Said in Charge

CHAPEL HILL, N.C., Dec. 6.—The University of North Carolina Athletic Council met here tonight without taking any final action on the coaching contract of head football Coach George Barclay.

Chairman A. W. Hobbs would say after the meeting only that "careful deliberations" on the contract were not completed. He declined to say when the council would meet again.

The council is an advisory body and can make no final decision regarding renewal of Barclay's $11,000 a year contract.

It can only make recommendations to Chancellor Robert B. House who then will make a recommendation to Acting President J. Harris Purks. House, who attended the meeting, had said earlier tonight that he did not expect any announcement to be made tonight.

Sources said the committee was sharply divided regarding renewal of Barclay's three-year contract which expires Dec. 31. A pro-Barclay group was prepared to urge renewal of the contract but one source, who declined to be identified, said a majority of the council would vote to recommend the contract not be renewed.

TWO MURPHY CAGERS TAKE SIDELINE BREATHER
Tough Life for Paul Ard, Exciting One for Robbie Robinson

King, Moore Spark New-Look Murphy

Scoring Ace Cochran Gone, But Phelps' Eagles Can Fly

By MORT PERSKY

Coach Mo Phelps lost 25 points a game when Paul Cochran graduated, about half as many as he expects his whole 1953-54 Murphy High basketball team to score. Yet Phelps is tickled pink over his new set of Eagles.

He's tickled because these Eagles, who aren't really all-new, have assets the Cochran era only dreamt of: good balance, height and a tight defense.

The strength is at guard, where Norman King and Myron Moore sport 15-point averages for three practice games. Phelps thinks they'll keep that up, and the national magazine, Basketball, agrees with him on King. The annual names 6-1 Norman among its all-star best bets.

Little, 5-10 Moore has improved on his two-handed set shots and is able as well to drive in and lay 'em up. King disturbs the cords mostly with a one-handed push, but he's a versatile performer who'll be used at every position and will likely look as good on defense as on offense.

"We'll run hard," says Phelps, "but not as hard as last year." The reasons he gives are good ones: 6-4 forward Milton McRae and 6-4 front-line sub Bob Crutchfield. They've got the height to make Murphy's opponents run.

There's also a good reason Crutchfield won't be a starter. Doug Hatcher, the 6-2 all-state end who just began working the football out of his system, is No. 1 pivot man. He hasn't come around yet, but when he does his stamina will count for plenty.

There are two other forwards in the middle of the Murphy picture. Floyd Morris, who's 5-10, is the starter now, and 5-11 Larry Juhan is the man who'd like to change the view.

Guards Paul Ard and Robbie Robinson and forward Buddy McCloud, all three under six feet, are juniors still trying to sell themselves into the upper ranks. They'll come in handy next year when Hatcher, King, Moore and Morris have gone their ways.

Phelps thinks Murphy, West Fulton, Northside and North Fulton will be in there battling for the city title. Among his favorite northern division players (when they aren't harassing Murphy) are Northside's Bud Collier, West Fulton's Marvin Tibbets and Calvin Walle, North Fulton's Vance Rankin and Clyde Mynatt and O'Keefe's Wilbur Dover.

Two Gridders Get A-A Bid From GMC

MILLEDGEVILLE, Dec. 6.—Two Georgia Military College footballers, halfback Gino Novelli, Bronx, N.Y., and guard Paul Crenshaw, LaGrange, have been nominated for the junior college all-America team that will be announced out of California Dec. 21.

Novelli, all-Metropolitan three years at Cardinal Hayes High in New York, was outstanding offensively and defensively for the Bulldogs. He graduates from the high school division of GMC this year.

Crenshaw got the nod of all opposing coaches as an outstanding lineman. He weighs in at 185 pounds. He completes two years of college work in June.

Coach Lew Cordell, who played for Wally Butts at old Madison A&M, reports both boys headed for Athens and another Bulldog specie. Cordell has won 107 of 146 games since taking over as coach at GMC in 1937.—THOMY.

N. Fulton Wins

North Fulton's boys assumed an early lead and pulled away from Druid Hills, 69-44, in a boys' basketball game Tuesday night on the North Fulton court. Clyde Mynatt and Teller Carlock bucketed 16 points apiece in pacing the North Fulton attack. Jerry Meyer hit 14 for the losers.

GMA Wins, 48-44

Georgia Military Academy beat Fulton High School in basketball, 48-44. Tuesday night despite a 23-point effort by the losers' Fred Murphy. Arch Bynum led GMA with 13 points.

SOME ALL-STARS, OTHERS JUST STARS

Athens' Guisler Gains 900 Yards After Bench-Sitting for 6 Games

College scouts began recruiting hordes of high school football stars with the stroke of midnight that separated Tuesday and Wednesday. And one of the most coveted of them all was a 170-pound halfback who didn't make anybody's all-state team and hadn't gained a yard through Oct. 20.

That description could fit only one player, unbeaten Athens High's sensational George Guisler.

Guisler, sought by many colleges now, was out with a bruised hip for the first six games of the season. Since then, Athens, which will be at home to Valdosta for the state championship playoff Friday night, has played six games. Guisler has galloped for some 900 yards and is averaging 19 yards per carry. A team so brilliant as Weyman

Sellers' terrifically swift Trojans is bound to harbor a few heroes as unsung as was Guisler until he burst from the cocoon of obscurity by running over Richmond Academy's powerful outfit on Oct. 21. Among these are two very able, very fast 185-pound tackles named Ed Hanson and Billy Carter. Their sparkling defensive play and blocking has left little to be desired.

Another is tackle Terry Lawson, 185-pound son of University of Georgia basketball coach Red Lawson. Terry is unsung chiefly because, like Guisler, he was injured much of the time. He's well now and will switch to guard for the Valdosta battle.

Jim Hall, a short end (5-9) with a fine pair of hands, is the Trojans' leading pass receiver with 12 catches for 200 yards. Mac Cornelson (165) plays offensive guard, defensive end, is the only soph on the starting team and has tremendous speed.

Tremendous speed, in fact, is what makes the Trojans click. Sellers equips his linemen with low-cut shoes and as light regalia as possible to improve that speed, and for the psychological value. Smart boy.—ROBERTS

Charles Tops Toxie Hall

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 6.—Veteran Ezzard Charles reversed a three-week-old defeat Tuesday night, taking command from the start and pounding out a convincing, unanimous decision over Toxie Hall, in a heavyweight 10-rounder.

A crowd of 3,779 paid a gross of $13,436 to see Charles, 197½, of Cincinnati, completely dominate the match with Hall, 191½, pound Chicagoan. Hall won a split verdict over Charles in Providence Nov. 14.

Do you know that Seagram's Gin is Naturally Golden?

Seagram's Golden Color is the result of a Natural Mellowing process — original with Seagram in the United States. No artificial coloring added.

IF YOU are one of the people who wonder why Seagram's Gin is GOLDEN—instead of the usual color—here are a few facts for your consideration.

First of all, there is absolutely no artificial coloring in Seagram's Gin. The golden color of Seagram's Gin results naturally from an exclusive and original extra step in the Seagram process that goes beyond the usual gins and carries Seagram's to the ultimate point of ripe, mellow perfection.

But the difference goes far deeper than color alone. The same process that imparts a subtle golden glint to Seagram's Gin also mellows and softens its taste—for the smoothest, driest gin drinks that can be made.

Buy a bottle soon. Then make your favorite gin drink—and try it on your friends. Your delight and theirs will be golden—because Seagram's Golden Gin makes any gin drink taste better.

MOORE AND RICHARDSON LUG HEAVIEST LOAD FOR MERCER

By AL THOMY
Constitution Sports Writer
MACON, Dec. 6 — After the 1954-55 season Mercer University's basketball Bears were ranked 393rd among 808 colleges of the nation by the widely published Dunkel ratings. As Coach Jim Cowan sees it, the Bears might move up this year, possibly to 390th.

Cowan, one-time Davidson basketball captain who had only one losing season and that the past campaign (8-14), is not normally pessimistic. But like Sgt. Friday, he's not ignoring the facts.

Consider this: Lost from the 1954-55 squad are Tommy Mixon, the Hughes twins (John and James), Toof Boone and Bob Greene.

Dwell on the name Mixon. Here is the boy who scored 1,801 points in four years of college play, a record for basketball in the state of Georgia. Here is an offensive machine gone the way of graduation.

The Hughes boys were guards with the knack of moving the ball. Greene is still in school

Billy Joe Groover

(Mercer meets Georgia in Athens Wednesday night as the Bulldogs open their home season. This is another in a series of previews on Georgia college basketball teams by staff writer Al Thomy.)

but has decided to give up the game.

"We are in the rebuilding state," says Cowan. "We don't have aid to athletes here and consequently have to get ours out of the student body. Ours is a team that needs experience and as usual we don't have any height. But we're used to that at Mercer. We have learned to live with it. We'll utilize the fast break at every opportunity, and use patterns that don't center on one big man."

Mercer's season will depend a great deal upon two men of almost identical proportions, 6-2 guard Cary Moore, LaCenter, Ky., and 6-2 forward Woody Richardson, Monroe, La. Both are 20, weigh 170-180 and are sophomores.

Richardson is a fine rebounder, works hard and is consistent. Moore has come along fast since his freshman year. He's a clever ball handler, a reliable shot.

At center, Cowan has Billy Joe (Goose) Groover, Canton, At 6-4 and 175 pounds, Groover is not too strong under the boards but he rebounds often enough to worry any and all foes. He relies on a hook and a one-handed push shot.

Rounding out the starting five are guard Roger Bolton, 5-11, former Atlanta Brown High star who transferred from Georgia Tech, and forward Bobby Graham, 6-1, Linderhurst, N.Y., junior who has hit a winning stride after two years on the B team.

Reserve aid is expected from Joe Lowe, Buena Vista, 5-10 junior forward; Jerry Lisle, Lake Wales, Fla., 5-8 freshman guard.

The Bears may improve on their 8-14 season because, despite the loss of Mixon, they have better balance and teamwork. They're going to have to show Cowan. "We'll be lucky to win 500," he says. During his seven seasons here, Mercer has won 110, lost 60, so luck won't play the whole part.

CAPSULE REVIEW—Strength: Good speed on fast break. Weakness: Lack of height. Experience: Best players Woody Richardson, Cary Moore. Top newcomers: Pete Clements, John McNeill. Last year's record: 8-14. Winning potential for 1955-56: 500 or less.

The 1955-56 Schedule:
Dec. 7—At Georgia; 10—At Appalachian State; 15—At North Georgia College; 16—At Georgia Tech; 17—Florida Southern; 20—At Presbyterian; 21—At Wake Forest; 22—At Southern; 23—Rollins; 24—Stetson; 25—Georgia; 26—Presbyterian; 27—At Georgia College; 28—Georgia Teachers; 29—Georgia Teachers.

Georgia Teachers Trounce Newberry

Webb Collects 25 Points To Spark 91-62 Victory

STATESBORO, Dec. 6 (AP)—Georgia Teachers College raced by the Newberry Indians, 91-62, after leading at halftime, 49-26, Tuesday night.

Led by Chester Webb who scored 25 points to run his two-game total to 70, the Profs used 12 men in defeating the Indians.

Three men, Paul Cone, Jim Woolridge, and John Dugan each scored 12 points to lead Newberry. Woolridge, a 6-foot 5 center, scored all his points in the second half.

The Profs who jumped to an early lead were never behind. The game stayed fairly even for the first eight minutes, the Profs holding a 20-14 lead at that point. Then two field goals by Webb and a basket and two free throws by Garland Campbell built it up to 30-18 and the Profs worked it to a comfortable 23-point margin at the half.

er, had insisted on the use of helmets at bat and on the field since 1953 and has used them on their farm club at New Orleans since 1952.

Several players in both leagues use helmets voluntarily but there is a hard core of veterans who refuse to adopt any such protection. The Cleveland Indians voluntarily adopted helmets last season.

Several baseball "beanings" in recent years might have resulted in fatalities if the player had not worn a helmet. Joe Adcock, Milwaukee first baseman, still fondly displays a dent in his helmet at his home which he credits with saving his life the day he was hit on the head in Brooklyn in 1954.

It was reported the National League voted 6-2 for the new rule after considerable discussion. Walter O'Malley, Brooklyn president, said some veteran players might not like the idea and Lou Perini, Milwaukee owner, called attention to possible "psychological disadvantages" to some athletes.

Alarmed at the statistics that show American League games averaged 2 hours and 31 minutes in 1955 as compared to 2 hours and 27 minutes in 1954 and as low as two hours and six minutes and often under two hours 15 years ago, the league took action.

American League managers, coaches and nonplaying persons on the bench no longer will be permitted to visit the pitcher's mound more than once while the same pitcher is in the game. A second trip would result in the pitcher's automatic removal.

Zaharias Improving, Writer's Cramp Her Big Worry

GALVESTON, Texas, Dec. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Zaharias spends most of her day writing letters to her friends all over the country, "enlisting their aid in arranging benevolent programs to swell the cancer fund," the spokesman said.

In fact, a spokesman said, the "Babe" is more concerned about developing "writer's cramp" than about the recurring pains in leg fit programs to swell the cancer fund.

Doctors at John Sealy Hospital said today that woman athlete Babe Didrickson Zaharias has shown steady improvement since she re-entered the hospital two weeks ago.

Cook's Talk Whips Up Yale Storm

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 6. —A scheduled address by Georgia's attorney general, Eugene Cook, Thursday night before the Yale law school's Conservative Society has whipped up a storm of protest here.

Cook, says an announcement by the Conservative Society, is to discuss "The Southern View of Segregation."

Opposition to Cook's address has come from the Yale chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP); the John Dewey Society, the New Haven Civil Liberties Council, the Yale Hillel Foundation, Yale Christian Assn. and the Young Democrats of Yale.

In a joint statement, these groups said today they have sought without success to induce the Conservative Society to change Cook's appearance to a public debate "so both sides of the question may be discussed."

The statement declared that "a more representative and constructive approach to the problem is needed" than is permitted in a one-sided discussion.

The group has the support of the Yale Daily News which said editorially:

"It would seem that the freedom of expression that the Conservative Society so vigorously and justifiably advocates is being compromised here."

The answer of the six societies has been to schedule a panel discussion for Friday night at the Yale Law School on the subject, "Difficulties Faced by Desegregation."

Listed as speakers are James Warner, international representative of the AFL-State, County and Municipal Workers Union, and Louis Pollard, assistant professor of law at Yale and legal counsel for the NAACP.

Billy Graham

Was Christ's Forgiveness Plea Heeded?

QUESTION: Do you think our Lord's prayer on the Cross, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do," was answered?

ANSWER: Yes, although we do not know how. When Peter preached his sermon at Pentecost about 3,000 people were converted. Probably some of these were those who shared in crucifying Jesus and for whom Christ prayed. In the succeeding weeks and months, great numbers of people heard the Gospel message from the mouths of the apostles and were converted.

There is no reason to doubt that our Lord's prayer was being answered all during those days and weeks. Incidentally, here we also have an example of the attitude we should have as Christians. When we are mistreated our natural reaction is to fight back. But when Christ prayed for His tormentors He showed us what He would have us, as Christians, to do.

Precious moment for Mother with clean, fresh clothes like these!

Unless clothes rinse clean ...they're just part clean!

all answers the question: "How clean is clean?" Clothes washed in all are completely clean because its "controlled suds" rinse out completely! There's never any Suds Scum to dim the brightness of fresh-washed clothes...and stain them during ironing.

Millions of women prefer all.

Automatic washer makers prescribe all to get the best possible performance out of their machines.

The photographs below show you why.

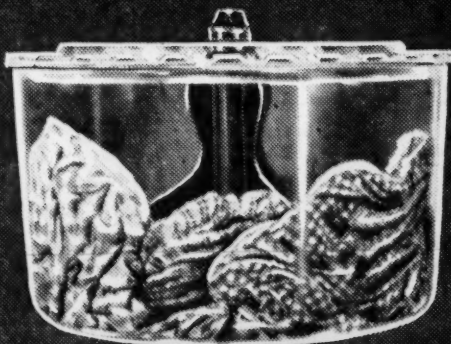

Actual photos of transparent automatic washers prove:

How all can wash so clean yet rinse as free!

Thick suds can leave Suds Scum — as this picture clearly shows. Wash water has been drained out... but look what remains! A blanket of sticky suds that cling to fabrics and stubbornly resist being rinsed away. That's why clothes washed in thick suds can so often look disappointingly dull and gray.

See the difference with all! Again, wash water has been drained away. But this time you see no hard-to-rinse-away suds. all gets clothes completely clean because its "controlled suds" rinse out completely. That's why clothes washed in all are always so soft and fresh, and iron so beautifully.

CHRISTMAS BEGINS WITH A TRIP TO RICH'S, THE STORE OF THE GREAT TREE!

Celestine Sibley

No Truck With Finicky Birds

Nobody has advised me what the swallows are doing about Capistrano. But I do have a communique that ducks have come back to Callaway Gardens.

Down at the famous Chipley gardens they make a point of being especially hospitable to birds. In fact, the gardens have been designated as an official bird sanctuary and they have a bird trail with all kinds of fruit-bearing shrubs and plants for birds to feed on, in addition to feeding stations located throughout the gardens.

I'm told that if you want to emulate the gardens and be kind to Our Feathered Friends, you can even write down there and they will furnish you information on feeding habits and such.

Although I'm an inveterate devotee of the "send-off-for" cult and have been since the days when I used to order off for Cloverine salve, I am not going to ask the Callaway Gardens bird experts what to cook up for birds. No, sir, birds are dandy but there's such a thing as encouraging them too much.

Besides, I'm all worn out these days from trying to cope with the eating habits of three children, a dog and two cats. I haven't found one single dish that all the children like unless you count their wild Sunday fights over the lone chicken gizzard. And none of them, even Miss Butterball, the cat, will touch the succulent, vitamin-rich liver. On top of everything else, Mumps, the senior cat, has taken to scolding the tender little mice in our kitchen, even when I catch them in traps and present them to him with a side order of cream.

So I should take on the capricious appetites of birds!

Still, birds can be mighty beguiling. For some time now we have put out seeds and stale bread crumbs in our back yard and it's almost as good as seeing something by Walt Disney—the way birds and squirrels come down and eat together. Sometimes I think it would be interesting to be able to identify some bird besides pigeons and bluejays.

For instance, down at Chipley they are talking about "little and great Blue Herons" (I guess I'd know a heron, all right), ring-necked ducks, slate-colored juncos, Wilson's snipes, red-breasted and hooded Mergansers, cedar waxwings, orange-crowned warblers, song sparrows and ruby and golden crowned kinglets.

They all sound so pretty it might be nice to be able to spot them—but not if they're going to squabble over their meals and act finicky about whether the old toast I give them is buttered with oleo or the very best sweet country butter from the hills. And they do squabble like children. Sometimes there's such a shrill squawking and flapping of wings in our back yard I think the cats have slipped out and have waded into the flock. Usually it turns out to be a bluejay insisting on his rights.

Seems that at Callaway Gardens they put crushed corn on the lawn and if it is spread over a wide enough area that might cut down on the fighting. The Canada goose flock is crazy about eating young rye grass on the golf course and will worry down a little corn on the side—a nice tip, if you've got a golf course.

If you're such a good hostess that you want the birds to be comfortable around your home and have what they like to eat you might want to write Callaway Gardens. But as far as I'm concerned they can eat what the children and the dogs and cats leave or take their complaining elsewhere.

USEFUL GIFTS WITH UNUSUAL TREATMENTS FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS

Don't Visit the Christmas Boutique Unless You're Seeking Novel Gifts

By MARY GRAY ANDERSON

Are you marking the days off on the calendar and racking your brains for Christmas gift ideas—especially for those more sophisticated individuals who appear to have rather expensive taste?

A suggestion for this problem is to go to a Christmas boutique and browse around. It is very likely that your problem will be in reverse. You'll find so many attractive and suitable gifts in the little shop you'll have a hard time deciding which one to get. They all look elegant, and are not all expensive.

But don't go to a boutique if you are looking for the same old run-of-the-mill variety of gifts. You won't find them in these little shops. They specialize in new and unusual items.

JEWELLED TRAVEL IRON

To give you an idea of what to expect, here are some items found in the boutique at Franklin Simon.

If she's a traveler, or just does a lot of light ironing at home, she's sure to warm up to a jeweled travel iron. The handle of the gleaming iron is encrusted with filigree metal studded with pearl and rhinestone.

The iron operates on AC and DC and comes in a handsome plastic plaid carrying case. And it's so attractive she'll leave it out on display when it is not in use.

Every lady loves a pretty boudoir. Dress it up for Christmas with an elegant clock. The selection is wide and varied.

You might choose a dainty musical clock with the front elaborately decorated with little angels, flowers and jewels. When the clock alarms it plays the Blue Danube Waltz.

Another clock that might suit the lady's fancy is in a bird cage design. The cage hooks on a jeweled metal stand. The face of the clock is on metal cylinders hanging from the center, and the alarm is set by numerals on the floor of the cage. When the clock is running the bird in the cage is set in motion.

Then on Dec. 20 the group will make its 10th annual holiday visit to the home to decorate a tree, the rooms and provide each patient with a Christmas arrangement.

Gift-wrapped toys appropriate for girls under 10 years old will be assembled by members of the Home and Garden Study Club when they meet Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the home of Mrs. Charles Conklin at 660 Longwood Dr. The toys will be given to the Atlanta Girls Club for distribution at its annual Christmas party.

Feminine taste is always excited with glitter. There are gifts that are literally covered with rhinestones to put in her Christmas stocking.

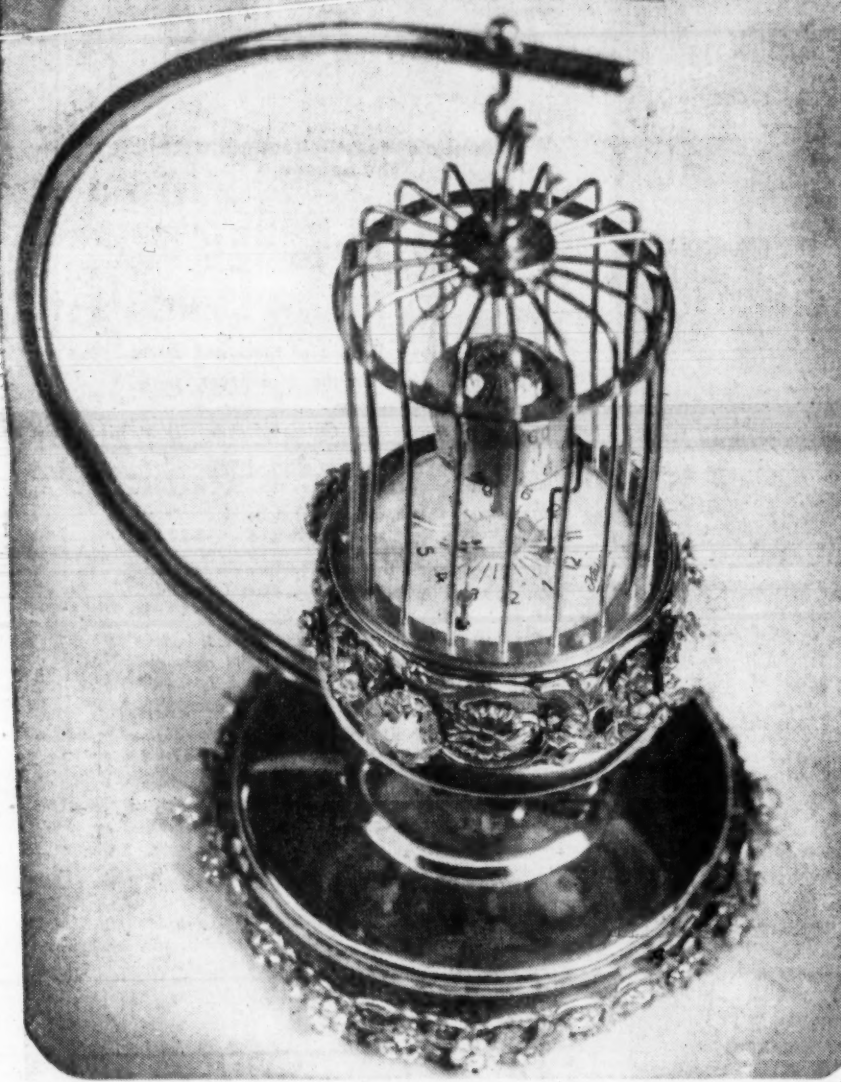

There are little jewelry boxes of gold metal that open up into two tiers with the top covered with rhinestones. There are rhinestone-covered cigarette wagons, cigarette cases, lighters and lipstick tubes. These make wonderful gifts as sets or individually.

The list for ladies could go on and on to include elegant jewelry boxes with glass sides and jeweled metal frames, fancy metal and jewel ash tray caddies with four crystal ash trays, jeweled silent butlers and many other items that would make Christmas gifts with an unusual flair.

The boutique is not confined to gifts for ladies. You'll find handsome gifts for men, too, such as leatherette jewel boxes designed to hold tie clips and cuff links. And these cases come complete with three handsome pairs of cuff links.

Even baby gifts can be found in the boutique. You could give her a jeweled piggy bank to start her fortune. The piggy is so attractive she will cherish it through the years.

Gardeners Spreading Cheer

By YOLANDE GWIN

Atlanta's "green thumbs" are placing special emphasis on spreading cheer as the Christmas season nears.

After all, garden club activities are not limited to meetings, flower shows, horticultural study and city beautification.

For instance, members of the Pine Brook Club are planning a trim-the-tree party for the children at Hillside Cottages. Everything for the party will be provided by the club members and the date for the event will be set at the club's meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. J. McClellan Jr., at 4400 E. Brookhaven Dr. Mrs. James Clotfelter is club president.

FAVORS FOR PATIENTS

Adults and children at Grady Hospital will be remembered by members of the Capitol View Garden Club who will assemble presents Wednesday at their meeting at the home of Mrs. G. F. Coley at 1509 Ponce de Leon Ave. The co-hostess will be Mrs. Emily Freeman.

In lieu of business and study, members of the Town and Country Garden Club will devote their meeting to making Christmas favors for the hospital trays at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

The meeting takes place Wednesday at the home of Mrs. F. H. Crymes at 5111 Peachtree-

Dunwoody Rd., NE. In the true spirit of the season, Mrs. Howard Peavy will read a Christmas story.

CHRISTMAS SYMBOLS

Christmas symbols such as the Christ Child, the Nativity, Santa Claus, the yule log and mistletoe will be given by each member of the Chatham Forest Garden Club when they answer the roll call at the meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Richard B. Ivey.

Members of the Gardenia Garden Club will split their holiday activities this month. When Mrs. Frank M. Malone entertains the club at its Christmas luncheon Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the Capital City Country Club, members will bring gifts for the patients, servants and nurses at the A. G. Rhodes Home for the Incurables.

Then on Dec. 20 the group will make its 10th annual holiday visit to the home to decorate a tree, the rooms and provide each patient with a Christmas arrangement.

Gift-wrapped toys appropriate for girls under 10 years old will be assembled by members of the Home and Garden Study Club when they meet Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the home of Mrs. Charles Conklin at 660 Longwood Dr. The toys will be given to the Atlanta Girls Club for distribution at its annual Christmas party.

Heavy Knit Sweaters Top Christmas Fashions

Sometimes it seems as if every woman must have all the sweaters she can possibly need—but she never does! There's always a new sweater fashion that a real sweater connoisseur thinks she can't live without.

I think the smartest sweater to choose as a present for a "Sweater Girl" is one of the new heavy knits—a two-ply cashmere, a three-ply orlon or one of the big bulky knit wool sweaters that the young set loves so dearly.

Color? White or pale champagne is first choice with most women these days.

A farewell gesture to Robert H. Gambrell who leaves during the weekend for residence in Nashville, Tenn., is the cocktail party at which Mr. and Mrs. Girard Brown Jr. will be hosts today at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Gambrell will become a member of the legal department of the Life and Casualty Insurance Co. in Nashville.

ANOTHER CHRISTMAS COCKTAIL PARTY is that at which Mr. and Mrs. Jack Yancey will be hosts on Friday, Dec. 16, at their home at 3921 Beechwood Dr. A hundred and fifty guests have been invited.

PETER TOMPKINS, of Washington, D.C., son of artist Laurence Tompkins of New York and nephew of Atlanta's Henry Tompkins, is the author of a story, "The Python and the Paw-paw," in the January issue of Esquire which appeared on news-stands yesterday.

Locale of the story is the African Sudan where Mr. Tompkins spent much time during World War II and where, incidentally, he met his wife, Jerry. It deals with the double dangers of Africa and a restless woman.

MRS. WILLIAM L. HOLLAND and Mrs. Lee Rogers have issued invitations to their annual Christmas coffee to be held on Friday at Mrs. Rogers' home on Powers Ferry road. A hundred and fifty guests will call between 11 and 1 o'clock.

DR. HERBERT S. ALDEN is in Chicago where he will conduct a round table discussion at the meeting of the Academy of Dermatology.

Miss Skinner Recalls First Line, Spoken in Her Stage Debut Here

By BETTY CARROLLTON

A great lady of the American theater suffers stage fright at every performance.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, one of America's most charming and versatile personalities and daughter of the great actor, Otis Skinner, explained here yesterday that she has never gotten over stage fright.

Miss Skinner approached her father on one of her opening nights with the question, "When does a performer get over stage fright?"

Her father replied that an actor never discards opening-night jitters.

"I've been on the stage 50 years," he told her, "and I still have stage fright. An actor who says he doesn't have stage fright is either lying—or he's no actor."

"IN THE GROOVE"

Miss Skinner said she is at her best when she has a good audience and feels she is "in the groove."

Her incomparable solo performances, in which she interprets numerous characters, have established her as one of the theater's greatest monologues.

She is almost as well known for her humorous books which include "Nuts in May," "Excuse It Please," "That's Me All Over," "Bottoms Up" and "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," the last of which she co-authored with Bryn Mawr classmate Emily Kimbrough.

In "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay" the authors related a shipboard incident that occurred in Southampton. When Miss Skinner contracted measles, she was smuggled off the ship by a doctor to escape possible quarantine. The rescuer was Dr. Paul White, the heart specialist who recently attended President Eisenhower.

DIGNITY

About the only thing Miss Skinner likes about her family name is the dignity brought it by her famous father.

"I always thought I'd marry a man with a beautiful name," she said.

In private life she is Mrs. Alden Blodgett, wife of a retired banker.

"Blodgett is spelled with one 't' simply because my husband's grandfather was bored with writing two," Miss Skinner confided.

When her first son, now a lieutenant, junior grade, in the Navy, was expected, Miss Skinner declared she would have nothing but a red-haired baby, although there had been no red hair on either side of the family in recent generations.

As for the name, she was sure her father would agree that his grandson should not be saddled with an Otis Skinner tag.

When the actress saw her handsome red-headed son for the first time she informed the nurse, "I don't think he's mine, but I'll keep him."

As for the name, the actress asked her husband to call Mr. Skinner and tell him they would like to name the baby after the actor.

"I'm sure father won't have that," she continued, "and we'll name the baby Richard."

When Mr. Blodgett made the call, Miss Skinner's father told him, "That's a fine idea. I never expected you to call him anything else."

Otis Skinner Blodgett is called "Dickie" by his mother.

"Dickie" may carry on the family tradition by seeking a career in the theater, possibly in the directing or writing field.

ATLANTA SPECIAL

Atlanta has special memories for the pantomime profligate.

She made her first stage appearance here. The play was "Blood and Sand," with her father. In the play Miss Skinner "waved a fan" and spoke her first memorable line: "A bull can't help being a bull, can he?"

On her arrival here Tuesday the actress was met at her hotel by Mrs. John Correll, president of the Atlanta Deaneys, National Catholic Women; Mrs. Stewart Colley, president of the United Churchwomen of Georgia; and Mrs. Niels Jacobson, president of the Atlanta Council of Jewish Women.

Newcomers Plan Christmas Party

The Atlanta Newcomers Club will have its Christmas party on Friday, Dec. 9, at 11:30 a.m. at the East Lake Country Club. This luncheon meeting will include a gift exchange and card party.

Mrs. Randall Miller is in charge of reservations for the party. Mrs. Willis Rhyne, social chairman, heads the decorations committee.

On Saturday, Dec. 10, the club will have a couples' card party at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel.

TO WED DEC. 18

Miss Jean Marie Garvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Garvin, will wed Sgt. James E. Frady of Canton, N.C., on Dec. 18 at the Post Chapel at Ft. Benning where the latter is now stationed. Miss Garvin, a graduate of Smith High School, attended the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia. Sgt. Frady is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer B. Wood of Canton.

YOUR STARS TODAY

Daily Guide—Take time for little diplomacies today, but beware of overdoing the backslapping. Today, and especially tomorrow, there is an emphasis on making issues confused because of double talk. Examine the glib talk or fine print for false notes or hidden snares. There could be some indecision tomorrow.

Happy Birthday, Sagittarius! New, stimulating ideas should bring a whole new outlook on life in the next few years. There is a chance to reap benefits now and again in the latter part of '56 through career or improved publicity. It is the time to dig in for a long pull ahead into new cycles, but be patient until after the middle of January or you might get off on the wrong foot. After that go after some of those dreams and aspirations. You can shoot high, but perfect your aim through application because heavier duties are part of coming events.

CHANGE OF LIFE CAN MAKE WOMEN Too Old! Too Fast! Too Soon!

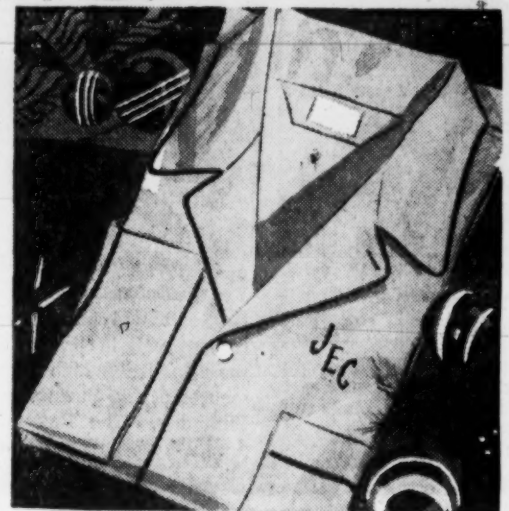

Doctors know change of life can be the first major sign of female aging. Yet thousands of women now go through change of life without growing too old, too fast, too soon—as Mrs. A. M. Day of Cleveland, Ohio, discovered. "I suffered hot flashes and nervousness. But Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, taken regularly, gave me blessed relief from the very first bottle. And now I feel fine." You really owe it to yourself to try this great medicine. Get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, liquid or tablets, at your druggist's today.

HOW THIS BIBLE CAN BRING YOU CLOSER TO GOD

This Christmas you can own a Bible so clearly and vividly written it can bring you and those you love a far better understanding of God's Word: the Revised Standard Version. Here is why this Bible is such a wonderful gift.

In the 344 years since the King James translation, new discoveries of ancient manuscripts have shed added light on the Scriptures. Because the RSV is based on such manuscripts—some older than any previously known—it is, in a sense, our oldest Bible.

Also, hundreds of words have changed in meaning through the ages. In the RSV direct, understandable language replaces confusing expressions, yet still preserves the Scriptures' timeless beauty.

Ask your book dealer for the RSV Bible. You'll solve your gift problems in minutes. And you'll be long remembered for such a treasured gift.

The RSV is published by Thomas Nelson & Sons, publishers of fine books since 1798.

Chemical Industry Has Titanic Growth

Georgia's booming chemical industry—exemplified by American Cyanamid Co.'s new $15 million plant in Savannah—has a bright future.

Opinion expressed by K. C. Towe, president of American Cyanamid Co., on his recent trip to Savannah apparently are typical of industry spokesmen.

"We constructed the Savannah plant with an eye toward further expansion," Towe said in an interview. "Whether the expansion is one, five or 10 years away, I can't say. However, the site was chosen and the plant designed with the idea in mind that the growth in demand for titanium dioxide would warrant a further increase in the plant's capacity."

The chemical industry—on the march in the South to the tune of $2 million new construction—daily erect 300 more plants in Dixie in the next decade, Towe said.

"At the moment, the finishing touches are being put on $555 million worth of new plants while another $225 million worth is in the drawing board stage," the American Cyanamid Co. president said.

Towe said authorities claim 10,000 new chemists and chemical engineers will be needed to operate the anticipated plants.

The rush below the Mason-Dixon line by chemical firms began shortly before World War II when it was discovered that the South's vast forest resources were a perfect home for cellulose-fibers.

Rayon and acetate plants sprang up over night. Last year, more than 70 per cent of the nation's cellulose fibers came from 19 plants located in eight Southern states.

Collectively, the South produced 85 per cent of the nation's synthetic fibers, 75 per cent of the country's polyethylene, 70 per cent of its synthetic rubber, 68 per cent of the nation's natural gas and 34 per cent of its petroleum.

American Cyanamid Co. was among the first of the large chemical firms to take advantage of the South's wealth in resources and labor. The newly constructed plant in Savannah is Cyanamid's third in Georgia and 20th in the South.

"The chemical industry in Georgia and the South has a tremendous future," Towe declared.

Deep Breathing Aid In All Heart Attacks

Claude R., 55, is the heart victim described yesterday.

"Dr. Crane, are there different kinds of heart attacks?" he asked, "and does your 'deep breathing' strategy work on all of them?"

That "deep breathing" technique is an excellent aid in every case of sudden heart attack, regardless of its type. And there are three classical types, as outlined below.

First, there are anginal attacks, such as Claude reported yesterday, in which the coronary arteries are reduced in size because of spasms of the muscles surrounding them.

SOLE BLOOD SUPPLY

The two coronary arteries are not very large, anyway, yet they are the sole blood supply of the heart.

Anything which reduces their diameter, immediately hampers the heart and may cause severe pain from the oxygen hunger that results in the muscle fibers of the heart wall.

We give drugs, like nitroglycerine tablets, which help dilate these coronary arteries and thus increase the blood flow to the heart muscles.

A second type of heart attack is caused by thickening of the walls of the coronary arteries, as from tobacco or other toxins. This may lead to complete blocking of a tiny blood vessel in the heart wall. We call this a coronary thrombosis.

The same symptoms can occur from a tiny floating blood clot which gets stuck in a small vessel and, like a cork, suddenly plugs it. But this floating clot is called an embolus.

HELP YOUR HEART

If a vessel is suddenly blocked by a clot, your heart rate is disrupted and erratic. You may feel as if you are choking from lack of oxygen.

If you are conscious, then immediately force yourself to breathe deeply and rapidly to increase the oxygen supply to your blood and thence to the heart muscle fibers.

We medicate give you a sedative and later administer oxygen from a bottle or in an oxygen tent, but your deep breathing may save your life on the very scene of the attack.

If you remain conscious, then feel reassured, for a severe attack knocks you out. If you are aware of your surroundings and can thus force yourself to breathe deeply, the odds are in your favor, so don't get panicky. Simply lie flat, relax, breathe deeply, and let God carry on.

If you are unconscious, you will not know what happens, anyway, so why worry about it in advance?

Even if you are unconscious, you may pull through with our modern medical aids and oxygen, but the odds are not as good as before.

The bidding:
North 1 club 1 spade 2 hearts 3 hearts 4 hearts
East 1 club 1 spade 2 hearts 3 hearts 4 hearts
South 1 club 1 spade 2 hearts 3 hearts 4 hearts
West 1 club 1 spade 2 hearts 3 hearts 4 hearts

Opening lead: Seven of spades.
This run of the mill hand brought grief to several players who held it in a recent tournament in Richmond, Va. Four hearts were reached at most tables, though in some cases North played three no trump. The final contract was determined somewhat by North's choice of opening bid. Several players chose to open with a no trump on 16 points and a balanced hand despite the lack of a heart stopper.

Against four hearts, West opened the seven of spades and the ace won in dummy. Several declarers hastened to take the trump finesse and when West took in the queen, a spade continuation forced South to ruff. After extracting the trumps in two rounds, South proceeded to drive out the ace of clubs. West was in and led another spade forcing out declarer's last trump. South then cashed the rest of his clubs and saw that he needed two diamond tricks to bring home his contract. He had no choice but to finesse, and when East took the king he cashed the setting trick with a spade. South could have won the hand by going for diamonds first instead of clubs, but no one actually found that play.

My friend, Mrs. W. Kilby Brown, prominent Richmond teacher, succeeded in making four hearts by the simple expedient of refusing the trump finesse. She was perfectly resigned to losing a heart, a club, and a diamond but felt that she could not afford to give up a trump trick too early for fear that repeated spade leads would play havoc with her trumps. She therefore cashed the ace, king of hearts, and then drove out the ace of clubs. West got in, took the queen of hearts, and then led a spade. Mrs. Brown ruffed and still had a trump left to give her time to drive out the king of diamonds.

KEEP WELL

By DR. VAN DELLEN

Proper Shoes Ease Strain on the Feet

Many individuals with flat feet can navigate for miles without distress. They walk like Charlie Chaplin, bearing most of the body weight on the inner aspect of the feet. Other forms of flat-foot lead to some degree of incapacity.

The first mentioned type may never cause difficulty because the foot structure is an individual characteristic comparable to the shape of the head or the length of the arms. The flattening of the longitudinal arches does not affect walking, jumping, or skipping rope.

The situation is different when the ligaments and muscles are too weak to support the feet. This lack of strength may follow a period of fatigue or strain and is noted frequently after prolonged illness or a leg injury. This same kind of decompensation occurs in the spine after prolonged bed rest for one reason or another; when the patient starts to get about he suffers from backache.

A professional football player had his appendix removed; after recovery from the operation, his feet hurt so much on walking and running he could not resume his career. Examination showed that the young man had never learned to walk properly, but the muscles in his legs and feet were strong enough to compensate for the defect.

A week in bed and two weeks of recuperation had so weakened the muscles, however, they were no longer able to overcome the defect. The supporting ligaments and tendons tired easily and the ensuing strain caused pain in the soles and lower legs. The arches needed support with pads and the weakened muscles had to be strengthened.

Pads made of metal, cork, sponge rubber, felt, leather, or other materials could be used but to be effective, they had to be of the right size and placed in the correct position. If the pad is a fourth of an inch off, it may not have the desired results. This is one reason why individual fittings are essential.

For permanent benefit, it is essential to wear good shoes and learn to walk properly. The best shoes are those with a straight last and sufficient width to prevent constriction of the toes. Stiff shanked soles with felt pads may be needed if the person's job requires standing for long periods.

The best example of proper walking is the South Sea island lass who strolls along the beach carrying an object on her head, which is held high. The shoulders are thrown back and with each step the heel strikes the ground first. The weight is forced over the outer aspect of the sole to the metatarsal area in a smooth rolling fashion. The toes are the last to leave the ground as they propel the body forward.

Your hard-of-hearing loved ones wonder, too. And it's up to you to help them. What better proof can you offer that you care . . . that you want them in the family circle . . . than to give the gift of a Zenith Hearing Aid.

This run of the mill hand brought grief to several players who held it in a recent tournament in Richmond, Va. Four hearts were reached at most tables, though in some cases North played three no trump. The final contract was determined somewhat by North's choice of opening bid. Several players chose to open with a no trump on 16 points and a balanced hand despite the lack of a heart stopper.

Against four hearts, West opened the seven of spades and the ace won in dummy. Several declarers hastened to take the trump finesse and when West took in the queen, a spade continuation forced South to ruff. After extracting the trumps in two rounds, South proceeded to drive out the ace of clubs. West was in and led another spade forcing out declarer's last trump. South then cashed the rest of his clubs and saw that he needed two diamond tricks to bring home his contract. He had no choice but to finesse, and when East took the king he cashed the setting trick with a spade.

South could have won the hand by going for diamonds first instead of clubs, but no one actually found that play.

My friend, Mrs. W. Kilby Brown, prominent Richmond teacher, succeeded in making four hearts by the simple expedient of refusing the trump finesse. She was perfectly resigned to losing a heart, a club, and a diamond but felt that she could not afford to give up a trump trick too early for fear that repeated spade leads would play havoc with her trumps. She therefore cashed the ace, king of hearts, and then drove out the ace of clubs. West got in, took the queen of hearts, and then led a spade. Mrs. Brown ruffed and still had a trump left to give her time to drive out the king of diamonds.

Proper Shoes Ease Strain on the Feet

Many individuals with flat feet can navigate for miles without distress. They walk like Charlie Chaplin, bearing most of the body weight on the inner aspect of the feet. Other forms of flat-foot lead to some degree of incapacity.

The first mentioned type may never cause difficulty because the foot structure is an individual characteristic comparable to the shape of the head or the length of the arms. The flattening of the longitudinal arches does not affect walking, jumping, or skipping rope.

The situation is different when the ligaments and muscles are too weak to support the feet. This lack of strength may follow a period of fatigue or strain and is noted frequently after prolonged illness or a leg injury. This same kind of decompensation occurs in the spine after prolonged bed rest for one reason or another; when the patient starts to get about he suffers from backache.

A professional football player had his appendix removed; after recovery from the operation, his feet hurt so much on walking and running he could not resume his career. Examination showed that the young man had never learned to walk properly, but the muscles in his legs and feet were strong enough to compensate for the defect.

A week in bed and two weeks of recuperation had so weakened the muscles, however, they were no longer able to overcome the defect. The supporting ligaments and tendons tired easily and the ensuing strain caused pain in the soles and lower legs. The arches needed support with pads and the weakened muscles had to be strengthened.

Pads made of metal, cork, sponge rubber, felt, leather, or other materials could be used but to be effective, they had to be of the right size and placed in the correct position. If the pad is a fourth of an inch off, it may not have the desired results. This is one reason why individual fittings are essential.

For permanent benefit, it is essential to wear good shoes and learn to walk properly. The best shoes are those with a straight last and sufficient width to prevent constriction of the toes. Stiff shanked soles with felt pads may be needed if the person's job requires standing for long periods.

The best example of proper walking is the South Sea island lass who strolls along the beach carrying an object on her head, which is held high. The shoulders are thrown back and with each step the heel strikes the ground first. The weight is forced over the outer aspect of the sole to the metatarsal area in a smooth rolling fashion. The toes are the last to leave the ground as they propel the body forward.

30 new places where GM and GM dealers are working together to deliver better service everywhere

AT THE 30 spots on the map here there are fresh new buildings known as General Motors Training Centers.

They have special rooms marked off with the names of the five General Motors cars which GM dealers sell, plus Fisher Body and GMC Truck.

Any General Motors dealer is free to send his mechanics here for special training in the car the dealer sells—and these postgraduate schools of service training are so popular with dealers that thousands of their mechanics have already taken the courses.

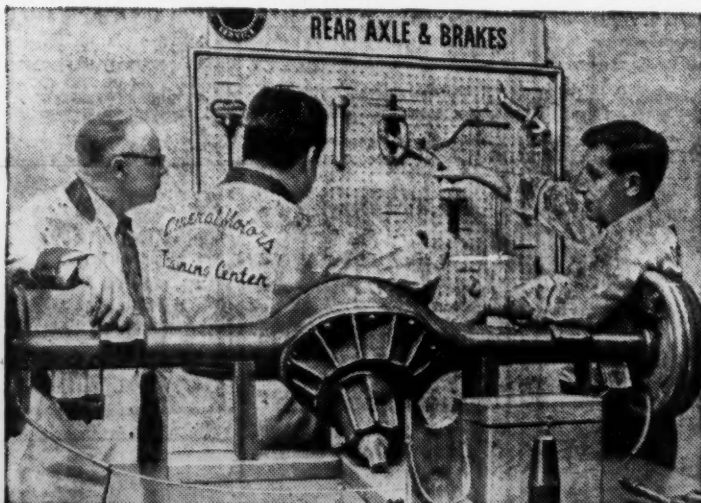

This, we believe, is an excellent example of thinking a responsibility through.

Our engineers are busily developing a steady flow of new engineering improvements, unknown a few years ago.

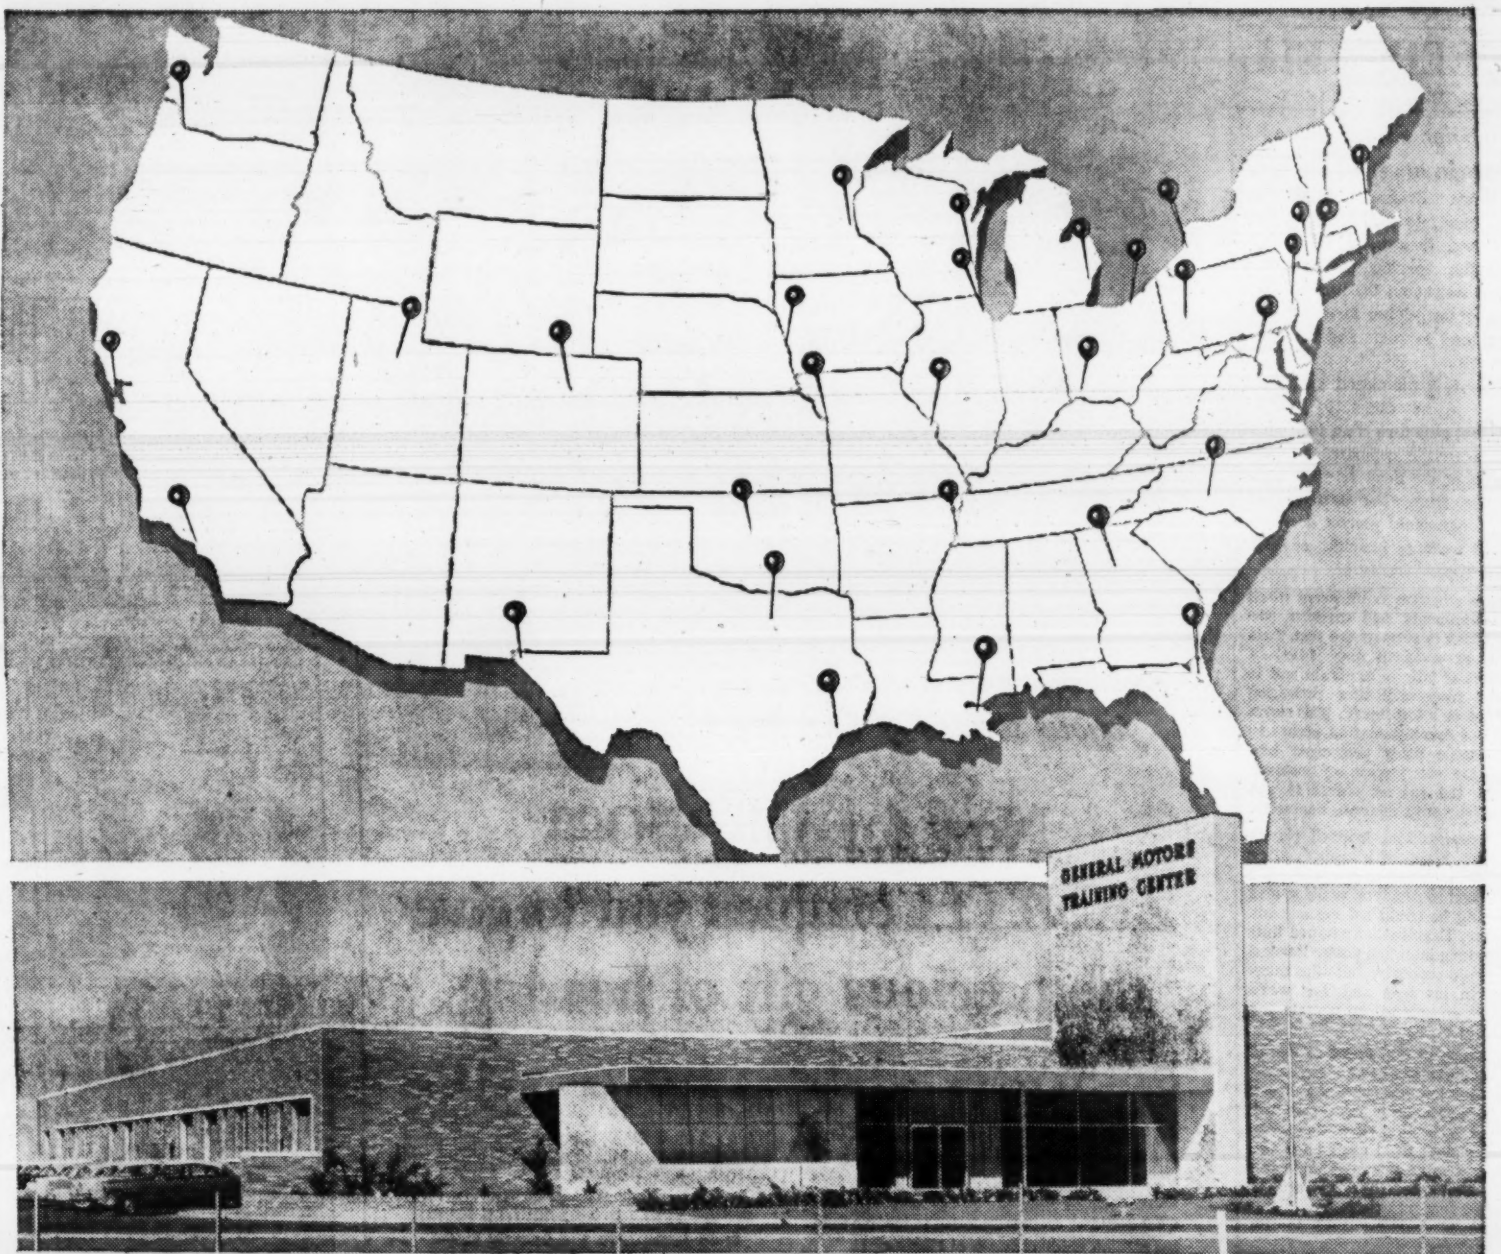

They had to develop special tools and machines to build them.

So a dealer's mechanics need special tools and machines and skills to give them the care they deserve.

Even an expert mechanic needs to know the engineering principles of a new GM automatic transmission—or a new high-compression V8 engine—power steering, power brakes, and all the new features which make GM cars so desirable. And when it comes to air conditioning—that opens up a whole new field to the man who, up to this time, has been a master at fixing automobiles.

The new tools in GM factories call for new tools for GM dealer service mechanics. Their use is a part of the nationwide training program attended by thousands.

Have you seen one of these modern Training Centers in your vicinity? They're one of the reasons modern GM cars receive such skilled attention.

We're glad—but not surprised—to say that General Motors car dealers have been quick to take advantage of these new facilities.

They and we have accomplished a lot together in recent years.

And if we're going to keep on leading the parade, the surest way to deserve success is to take good care of the millions who buy our cars each year.

Operation Snowflake And White Christmas

With today's paper you have a White Christmas supplement to tell you how you and other Americans are acting to make history. Even the younger Americans have seen startling changes in the nation's living habits. Today's supplement, dedicated to Operation Snowflake, tells how amazing new developments in home appliances are carrying on the inspiring story.

THE GROWTH of the auto industry, development of television, the building boom and modernization of homes have all changed American living programs. The effect has been revolutionary. But there is more revolution to come. Millions of Americans have already begun to take part in the appliance phase of the revolution. But experts say the changes which modern appliances are likely to make have just begun.

Today's supplement opens new vistas for the future—your future. Taken one by one, the modern changes in home equipment may sometimes appear to be minor matters. But they are not minor. Added together they mean new, more pleasant and more productive lives for you and other Americans.

Work-Saving Appliance Shows Packing 'Em In—the Kitchen

The men who are trying to get the women out of the kitchen are packing them in—yes, packing them into the kitchen!

This paradox is being repeated in stores across the country when merchants put on special shows of home appliances. The women crowd into the shows to find out about the appliances that can, among other things, reduce the time they spend in the kitchen.

They also learn, at the same time, that a modern kitchen is a pleasant place which can become a social center, with Dad, the children and all their friends getting into the act.

Many merchants have assumed that a fashion show was something that was likely to attract more women than almost any other event they could stage. Some of them have been amazed to discover that well-planned appliance shows have brought larger crowds than the fashion events.

Hot Water And Different Definitions

Hot water means different things for different jobs.

For washing white clothes and dye-fast cottons, hot water should be from 120 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit.

For your bath, that would be scalding water and would be very uncomfortable. Your bath water is hot if it is about 95 degrees.

Washing delicate woollens or stockings requires water of 90 to 105 degrees.

Dishes are best washed in a mechanical washer at temperatures that can run higher than 180 degrees, although you can't stand such temperatures when you hand wash them.

There's a Revolution in Homes

Revolution has reached the American home—an extension of the Industrial Revolution that started two centuries ago. It is providing a staff of machine servants for many families.

Here are some of the details spelled out by inventors, businessmen and trade associations that are the driving force behind the revolution.

Data gathered by many agencies show that U.S. homemakers are turning more and more of their tasks over to their machine servants and doing other things with their time.

Sometimes they have jobs outside their homes. There are about 16 million women with jobs and many of them are home-makers. But they are also doing other things. Sometimes they sponsor civic programs, welfare activities or cultural projects. In most cases they build richer lives for their own families.

TYPICAL of the revolutionary machines is the clothes dryer. In a survey of 1,100 women who have used mechanical dryers at least a year, 37 per cent said that labor saving was the most important benefit they got from the machine.

This reflects the fact, brought out in another study, that a typical woman who dries her clothes in the back yard carries up to three tons of wet clothes out to the line every year. Added is the labor of stooping, picking up, shaking out and pinning up each piece.

Another 18 per cent of the women said that time saving was most important to them. In addition, 31 per cent found that the dryers did a better job—gave them softer, fluffier clothes—while 14 per cent found most important the fact they avoided weather delays in drying clothes.

ANOTHER STUDY showed that an automatic dishwasher saves from 32.7 to 62.2 per cent of the time it takes to do the job by hand.

Many other machine-servant savings already have been made.

Our mothers and grandmothers wiped out the chores of stoking and regulating wood and coal cooking ranges. They installed gas and electric stoves, but even that saving is being extended. Modern stoves have automatic devices that take over much of the work of cooking.

TIMING DEVICES can prepare a meal when there is no human being in the house.

Modern refrigeration engineers have scores of devices to make food easier to handle. They have others that regulate temperatures and humidity inside the refrigerators.

Water heaters have been with us a long time. They helped make the Saturday night bath a thing of the distant past and make daily bathing a necessity.

But today's water heaters are far from the old boilers that helped start the revolution. Some of the sleek new installations fit beautifully into the decor of playroom, kitchen, bathroom. Or they occupy odd corners in the small new homes.

BEGINNING—Gas stoves like this were a great step forward in the early days of the revolution in home appliances.

Dishwasher Helps Keep Family Well

Laboratory tests show that dishes washed in a mechanical washer are cleaner than those washed by hand. One public health service test showed that bacterial count was smaller on the mechanically washed dishes.

A test at Michigan State College showed that diseases could be carried from one person to another by germs left on dishes. But the conclusion of the professors was that mechanical dishwashing can virtually eliminate the health hazard.

Still another test used ultra-violet light and a fluorescent dye. This method showed up particles remaining on the dishes too small to be noticed by other means.

There were fewer particles on dishes that had gone through good mechanical washers than on those that had been hand-washed.

Experts say one of the big reasons for the better performances of the mechanical washers is the fact they can operate with hotter water.

HUMAN BEINGS just can't put their hands into water as hot as the dishwashers use—not unless they go to the hospital afterward.

Not only does the hot water remove the dirt, especially grease, faster, it actually kills germs. It is the same action used when milk is pasteurized.

The U.S. Army has a rule that dishes shall not be wiped in its messes. The wiping of dishes is a fine method of spreading germs, tests show.

The Army keeps its personnel healthier than most civilian groups and the ban against wiping of dishes is just one of the precautions it uses.

You can dry your dishes by hand without wiping by careful use of very hot rinse water. But mechanical dishwashers do the job automatically and regulate the temperature of the water precisely.

PERHAPS the health aspect of changing to mechanical washing is largely a hidden asset, however. Freedom from the boredom of dishwashing was the thing most women liked when they made the change, it was shown in one survey conducted in Ohio by the National Electrical Manufacturers Association.

Associated with the drudgery was the question of lost time. When they should have been doing things for their families and for the community, that long, boring job of getting the dishes out of the way stood as a barrier to worthwhile activity.

In addition, almost all of the women who took part in this survey said they felt much happier about their entertaining when they used dishwashing machines. There was no immediate need to "get the dishes out of the way," they said.

THEY FOUND no difficulty in changing over to the new method. But some of them suggested that a new user of a machine should experiment a bit until she found her own individual method of handling the dishes.

Plan for Range Top

Did you know the homemaker can choose the kind of arrangement she wants for top of range cooking? She has a choice of clustered, staggered, divided, or all-in-a-row arrangements. The divided top—with a work space in the center between two units on either side—is the favorite of women across the nation.

DECORATIVE POTS, PANS

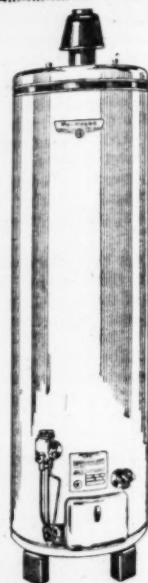

Modern pots and pans are often designed so that they will be decorative assets when hung in plain sight.

AUTOMATIC DISHWASHER MAKES 'EM SPARKLE Drives Away That After-Meal Drudgery

ding the chore in the new way. Every woman who took part commented on how much easier it was to keep the kitchen neat. The soiled dishes could be tucked out of sight in the dishwasher until a full load was accumulated. Most of them used their new machines only twice a day, doing breakfast and luncheon dishes in one load and doing dinner dishes separately. Of course they found they used far fewer tea towels and pointed out that their machine saved them the time and trouble of washing, ironing and storing the towels. youngsters liked to help with the mechanics of the job and boasted about their prowess with the dishwasher. The washer.

The Figures Show Boom

You don't measure a revolution in figures. Leisure, happiness, health, comfort and other intangibles don't lend themselves to that kind of thing. But the vast scope of the home appliance revolution can be indicated by statistics.

The electric industry says it has sold 338 million home appliances in America since 1949. That is an average of about eight for every home in the country.

In 1930 there were 19 different kinds of major electric appliances. By 1940 there were 36. Last year there were 54 and many more are on the drawing boards.

For a single year (1934) there were 2,023,200 gas ranges and 2,281,100 automatic gas water heaters sold in the United States. Almost 40 million of these two items alone have been sold since 1946.

SOME OF THE appliances to which the figures refer were small and expendable. The average home probably does not have as many new machines as the totals would indicate because some have been thrown out and replaced.

But students of the markets believe that America has not yet begun to use home appliances. That does not mean the market is not booming. It is. Mr. and Mrs. America are getting new machines for home use at every turn. There are, however, very real indications that the future will see use of household machines that would amaze today's families.

For one thing, the electric utility industry says the wires in most of today's homes just won't take care of many more really big appliances. The figures show about 70 per cent will take a few small electric appliances besides lights and that's all.

COUPLE THAT figure with the tremendous interest shown in displays and exhibits of new home equipment, and many salesmen predict a vastly expanded market once more families put in the wiring they need.

Market experts say that some of the most useful of the newer appliances have reached comparatively few homes. Dishwashers, freezers, clothes dryers and ironers are in that category.

In another class are appliances which have been with us longer. Almost all families have some kind of a cooking range. Most have some supply of hot water. Refrigerators are nearly universal and a very large number of families have some type of washing machine.

For these items, a very large part of the sales are replacements. But improvements made in such machines in the past few years almost make the new ones different in kind rather than degree. Appliances are turning automatic.

There is a great difference be-

Many Are Trading For Modern Model

Home-front changes in living habits are coming by segments. Some of the appliances that can become a part of your White Christmas are of general types that have been on the market for a long time. There have been important improvements in these, shown by the number of people who are replacing old units with new.

For example 70 per cent of the refrigerators and 67 per cent of the washers are going into homes where old units are being replaced by modern, improved machines.

This contrasts with some of the newer kinds of equipment.

Only 5 per cent of the dishwashers now being sold are replacements.

run and one that operates automatically after it is turned on. Students of the situation say that there is a pent-up demand.

For example, many of the clothes-washer sales still are old-type machines which have to be

Do you think you can't afford a clothes dryer? You may well be mistaken.

Home-laundry experts say there are a number of savings that can be made by the owner of a dryer.

Many families find they do not need so many clothes. With a dryer, you can put a batch through your washer and have them dry in a jiffy. You don't have to wait on the weather. Some of the new fabrics do not even have to be ironed. The sun and the wind are free, and you may think you save by using the extra effort needed to hang your clothes on the line. That may not be the case. Ever notice how the sun fades some of the colors? Such clothes last longer when you use a dryer.

Families with growing children often find that dryer savings are considerable. The dryer handles diapers so quickly and easily that many families find they no longer need to use a diaper service.

When older children are growing by spurts, there usually are many garments discarded because they are outgrown. With a dryer, the clothes can be washed and dried quickly and you will need fewer changes. That growing youngster can get far more wear out of each garment. Some estimates are he may need only half as many.

A sample testing showed that babies in the test were clothed for an average of $29 a year where dryers were used. In families without dryers the cost was $75.38 a year, on the average.

A year's clothing cost for a 7-year-old boy was $42.34 with a dryer, but averaged $85.21 when dryers were not used.

Automatic Washday Can Be Pleasure

Washday! Is that a bad word for you?

When you get the new home-laundry appliances, you will find it need not be. In fact, there may not be any washday. You may find it easier to push the button and let your new automatic washer turn out clean clothes any time you have a load for it.

Meanwhile, many families are planning home-laundry centers that make a mockery of the old unpleasant places where clothes were scrubbed until they were clean.

You can put them almost any place. They fit nicely into the kitchen if you have enough room. You might close in that little porch and place the laundry there. Even bath rooms can be used for the purpose. Some of the new equipment is small enough to fit into a small space.

MANY MODERN laundries are in the basement, right where so many of the old-fashioned kind were found. You might not recognize the new ones if you are used to the old.

Whether you use white or colored appliances, they can be colorful places. Walls, ceilings, floors, woodwork, curtains, are all spots where bright splashes of color can be used.

If you decide to put your laundry in the kitchen you can combine cooking activity with the push-button operations of washing and drying. Another combination which also works well is a laundry and a recreation room. You can turn out batches of clean clothes while the children are playing.

If there are small children, a play pen or a crib in that room will permit you to keep your eye on the youngsters while you are washing.

AUTOMATIC DRYING of clothes is also something that you will want to adopt.

Much of the change you will find in your new laundry originates in your own mind. You can have the automatic devices that make the work easier, but if you still approach washday as a bad word you may not feel it is easier. Your own attitude is critical.

You push the button. After that, the machine is supposed to take over. As a matter of physical actuality it will do the work. But it is entirely possible for you to do the work a second time in your own mind.

If you are thinking about that heavy load of wet clothes sloshing around in the soapsuds and remembering the days when you had to handle them, you will be doing that work again in a very real sense.

The Role of the Wholesaler Is Important

There's a man you may never meet. But whenever you stop to admire the beautiful streamlined appliances in a retail store, you're indirectly giving him a hearty pat on the back.

Those appliances are there because of the services he performs in getting them from the manufacturer to the retailer. And he does it in the most economical way possible, saving you money when you buy.

He's the wholesaler.

Maybe you'd like to know a little about what he does.

The wholesaler brings the appliances from the manufacturer to his warehouses. He buys in large quantities, but sells in quantities to suit the user's needs. By keeping in constant touch with his manufacturers, he is able to expedite shipments to customers, says

Electrical Wholesaling.

His trained salesmen help retailers make up lists; they make on-the-spot demonstrations of new devices for buyers; they help the retailer display and promote the appliances they're selling;

If a Christmas gift could talk ...

Would it tell her how much you admire the calm, efficient, uncomplaining way she did those unending household chores that make her job the world's busiest ... and most important?

What gift can say that more eloquently than any other?

Why, of course! A gift that helps her with those chores ... a gift that makes her job easier and more pleasant ... that provides her with more leisure, more time for relaxation ... a major appliance.

Be Glad You Find a Retailer When You Want Appliance

You've made up your mind you want a dishwasher for Christmas. You don't want to do another dish as long as you live.

So you go to town to look over models and colors and discuss the matter with the man who sells them. You're just doing Santa a favor, finding out all the information for him in advance.

But what if you got downtown to find there isn't a retail dealer? What would you do then? The company that manufactures dishwashers may be nearly a thousand miles away. You can't possibly go there and bring it back.

If that dealer were not there, you would realize what an important man he is for you.

He's the man who took you out of the frontier and made you a woman of considerable leisure. You don't have to do without, you don't have to haggle with distant sources of supply.

Right there on Main Street, or just around the corner, the retail store is waiting for you. There you see all the models of whatever appliance you're interested in, says the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

You talk with the dealer, get you what you want. Besides being prices, demonstrations and the a good fellow, he's a good business-

Leaders Are Backing FHA Plan To Insist on Adequate Wiring

Industrial leaders are backing a Federal Housing Administration move to insist on good wiring when FHA mortgages are drawn. They point out that some homes are still being built with wiring systems which could not take care of a full quota of appliances.

The FHA has a strong influence on most builders, although it cannot control the operations of the few who build without seeking government guaranteed mortgages.

Bankers and utility men point out that new homes without adequate wiring might well have a considerably reduced value in the future. Even the fact that the wiring could be improved after the house was built might turn buyers away.

They could prefer to avoid the trouble of putting in adequate wiring, even though they could get the home with poor wiring for enough less to take care of the changes.

You know that the retail dealer is a symbol of free enterprise and a vital link in distribution of goods to the public. You know that the retailer makes an essential contribution to a dynamic, high-level economy. You're mightily impressed, of course.

But where the retailer makes his biggest impression is on the personal level, in his individual dealings with you. You couldn't do without him. And for an indispensable man, he's made it pleasant, advantageous and worthwhile to you just to have him around.

Just Have a Seat and Iron Away

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Wednesday, Dec. 7, 1935 • 9-C

Would you like to sit down while you complete the family's weekly ironing in jig time without lifting an iron the usual thousand times? Then of course you've asked Santa for an ironer.

And when you get it, there'll be no more aching backs, tired arms and cramped legs from standing hunched over an ironing board and walking up and down as you iron. One survey says a woman walks approximately five miles and lifts 3½ tons for each week's ironing.

Using an ironer is almost like taking a breather in the day's activities. You sit down comfortably, you play a pleasant little game that shows what an intelligent woman you are, and pretty soon the ironing's done.

ABOUT THIS intelligence angle.

Operating an ironer for maximum results is not as intricate as working an equation in nuclear physics, nor probably as stimulating as a good game of bridge. But it is a challenge in a way, because — let's face it — a stupid woman would have a hard time doing it. Why?

Well, there are considerably more facets to using an ironer than plying the hand iron. With the latter you can plough on through thick or thin, and come wrinkle or pucker, the garment will eventually get ironed by sheer force or manual pressure.

It's not like that with an ironer. Finesse and intelligence are needed to operate the controls and understand the most skillful way to get each piece ironed.

NOT THAT IT'S an art you devote the best part of your life to learning. It's really quite simple — for an intelligent woman.

If her appliance dealer isn't equipped to give her instruction on how to operate the ironer, she can learn it herself in a few sessions from a book of directions that comes with the machine.

A few rules, a basic understanding of how it runs, a little practice — and you'll be amazed how quickly and easily the entire family ironing gets done. You'll have more time for other things, and you'll be more rested to enjoy them.

The ironer is about the only one of the major appliances that isn't automatic.

Water Heater Keeping Pace With Needs?

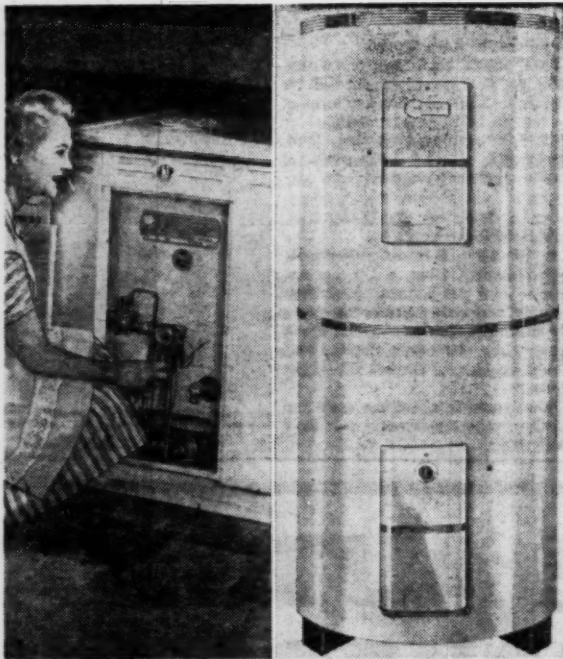

Your water heater may not be able to keep up with the load as you add new appliances for home use. As U.S. homes become more modern, they put in two or more bathrooms, big washing machines, dishwasher and other appliances that use hot water.

One study of home water use showed that 80 per cent of the water a modern family uses is hot.

It also showed that many families frequently find themselves out of hot water. They have to wait until more heats, use cold water or use emergency methods to heat it.

Some experts suggest a rule of thumb. Multiply 25 or 30 gallons a day by the number of people in your family. Then make sure your heater will produce that amount.

THEY ALSO suggest it is wise to expect larger needs in future years. In many cases this will mean an even larger hot-water capacity for your home. Heaters last for many years, and changing over to a larger size can be an annoyance. It also costs money to rip out one heater and put in another.

WATER HEATERS CAN FIT ALMOST ANY SPACE
There's a Size and Style for Every Need

Here are some of the reasons three gallons a minute. The regular type of washer takes 12 gallons per load, an automatic washer takes about 15 gallons per load. A tub bath takes about 18 gallons per load. Hand-washed dishes require three gallons. Some manufacturers seek to supply adequate hot water by suggesting larger tanks. Others offer faster heating.

One shower, one tub bath, a shave and breakfast dishes use 28 gallons.

WASHING THREE loads of clothes in an automatic washer can take up to 60 gallons of hot water in two hours. And there are often other uses for hot water in the home at the same time.

The experts say that, besides bathing, dishes and laundry, there are 136 uses for hot water in a home.

There are many types of heat-

SOME FAMILIES prefer to use the furnace to heat water. This works, but the experts warn against the belief that the method provides hot water free. Adding water heating to the work of your furnace is about equal to heating another room in a modern home, they say.

Another type of experts, the social students, say there is reason to believe that hot water is regarded as very important by many Americans. The "cold-water flat" is almost a symbol of poverty in some cities.

Plan Your Storage For Top Efficiency

Your White Christmas appliances will save you an enormous amount of time and effort, but you can save more if you plan your storage.

Experts on home-appliance problems say that most women could avoid thousands of steps if they just put things in the proper place.

For example, you probably keep your double boiler neatly stacked in one place. Why not keep the bottom near the sink where you fill it with water?—they ask. Put the top near your mixing or preparation center. And keep the lid near the range.

You can vary their recommendations according to your own work habits, but their suggestions are helpful.

NEAR YOUR preparation center, you keep food supplies in refrigerator and cupboards. There you need tools for cutting, mixing, beating, blending. You will also need cups and spoons for measuring, mixing bowls and pans.

Near your cooking and serving center, you should have space for skillets, saucepan covers, forks, pancake turners, pot holders, cake testers and serving trays.

Near the sink center, store food like potatoes that need cleaning before being prepared. Paring knives, vegetable brushes and types of pans which are filled with water before using also go there.

Naturally all your dishwashing supplies will be stored at this center.

WHEN YOU PLAN your kitchen, you can take it from there. The principles, the experts say, are simple. Try to place storage facilities at the point in which they will be used.

In some cases you can save yourself time by having duplicate equipment. Knives are often used near the preparation center. But if you have another store of knives near the sink, it often will save you trotting back and forth between the two centers.

You can store things on shelves, in drawers, hang them on the wall or put them in special racks. Storage cabinets can be placed under counters or beside major appliances. And don't forget they can also be hung from the ceiling.

The ceiling type of cabinet is especially appropriate if your kitchen has a peninsula or island arrangement. The top shelves should be reserved for little used things, but the bottom shelves in the ceiling cabinets can be low enough to be reached easily and can be a major storage center.

Refrigerator, Freezer Act As a Team

There are big freezer compartments in many of the refrigerators which have been sold in recent years. Meanwhile the separate home freezers have become popular. What happens to the freezer compartment in the refrigerator when the family purchases a separate freezer?

Some families may want and use both a compartment in their refrigerator and a separate home freezer, but some manufacturers have recognized that many people will not want to use both.

Refrigerators and freezers are now being offered in one unit. They have a full-size home freezer and a refrigerator without a freezer compartment. Another solution is a refrigerator without a freezing compartment to be used with existing home freezers.

Some of the larger frozen-food storage units in the latest refrigerators have been placed at the bottom rather than at the top of the unit.

freezers is noted by Mrs. Pearl Haak, authority on freezing foods at the University of Kentucky. The storage units do the job for which they were intended. But most of them are not designed as quick freezing units, she says.

Freezer Saves Time, Money, Aids Health

With a home freezer you save time and money—and preserve your family's health.

You save time because your shopping trips are fewer and the preparation of the frozen food is quicker.

Whole meals can be prepared in advance—already cooked or ready for cooking—and kept in the freezer until needed. Cakes and pies can be made on an assembly line basis and preserved for months.

And money... It's so easy to save money with a freezer. Fresh or commercially frozen food, bought in quantity when plentiful and priced low, can be stored with quality unimpaired. Leftovers can be popped into the freezer, kept for weeks, and served when the family is eager for the same dish again.

Not to overlook variety. You'll be serving your family the tastiest and most nutritious meals it ever had. All the flavor and health-giving minerals and vitamins of fresh foods will be yours with a freezer.

The homemaker who likes to put up her own fruits and vegetables will be delighted with freezing—quicker, cleaner and cooler than canning.

If you're a home gardener, you will have your own strawberries in December—with a freezer.

There are two types of freezers; chest and upright. But there are many models and sizes.

The horizontal chest-type has a lid at the top. These freezers range from 3 cubic feet to more than 20. The upright type has a front opening door, and resembles outwardly the regular household refrigerator.

Freezers work on the same principle as electric refrigerators. A motor operates a freezing unit which constantly maintains an extremely low temperature in a thickly insulated cabinet.

Taking an inventory of your frozen foods regularly helps you plan more efficiently.

Banks Play Key Role in Appliances

Your grandfather might have wondered at the idea he could find Santa Claus in a bank. But many people who plan a white Christmas through purchase of appliances for their homes are finding that banks have changed since Grandpa's day.

Maybe bankers never were as austere as people thought. They keep their eyes open and learn.

Certainly 1955 bankers are wiser than those of a generation ago. Today, loans for appliances to people like you are big business. More than 10 million Americans have borrowed money for appliances or home improvements.

At the moment, commercial banks have about two billion dollars out on loan to individuals like you for things like refrigerators, ranges, home laundries, water heaters, dishwashers, freezers, and other home appliances.

THAT'S THE UNPAID balance, not the total of the original loans. Each month the customers pay back 200 to 300 million dollars. And each month other customers walk into banks and borrow another 200 to 300 million for appliances.

It's good business for the banks, but like any good bargain, it's good business for the other fellow too. And the other fellow might well be you.

Most modern banks have officers whose job it is to see that everybody gets a good bargain. They are called loan officers. The fact is that bankers, like a lot of other people, realize that most Americans are honest. They can soon screen out the few poor risks.

At the same time, loan officers are experts on the needs and abilities of people like you. They don't want you to accept a loan that might prove a hardship for you later. That would be poor business for both you and the bank.

SOMETIMES PEOPLE who are using bank loans for the first time are a little frightened at the questions loan officers ask. Maybe it's a hangover from Grandpa's feeling that a bank was a pretty grim place.

The modern bank isn't grim at all. Chances are, you will be greeted by a pleasant receptionist who will direct you to the loan department. There you may have to wait a few minutes. The personal loan and sales finance department of a bank is usually one of the busiest of all.

But you will have a comfortable place to wait and it is possible you will find posters and booklets telling you how you can buy home appliances by means of a bank loan. There may even be a display of appliances.

But what about the loan officer? Is he grim? Or friendly and helpful?

HE IS MUCH like a merchant who wants to sell you something. But there is this difference. The merchant who gives you the wrong goods usually can take them back the next day and no one is hurt. If a bank gives you the wrong loan, it means trouble for you and for the bank for a long time.

So your loan officer is more than a merchant. He's an expert—just like your doctor or your lawyer. Much more than half his job is to protect you. He knows that if he protects you he protects his bank at the same time.

He will ask some personal questions—just like your doctor. Like a doctor he holds your answers in confidence. More and more people are going to such officers for sound professional advice.

Just as a doctor tells you how to keep a sound body, the banker tells you how to maintain healthy finances.

You may get credit life insurance with your loan. If you should die, the insurance pays off the loan and your family isn't burdened. Sometimes health insurance is available, which pays off if you are disabled. Such insurance might save Santa Claus' gift from becoming a burden to you.

Window Reduces Heat From Oven

One way to reduce heat in your kitchen is to use an oven with a window in the door. You don't open the door and let out heat so often when you can see what is going on.

Know the Voltage Of Electric Dryer

Electric dryers come in two types: 110 and 220 designs. Make sure you know which you are buying. A 220 requires a special power wire. Always check voltage requirements of a machine before buying. Don't overload.

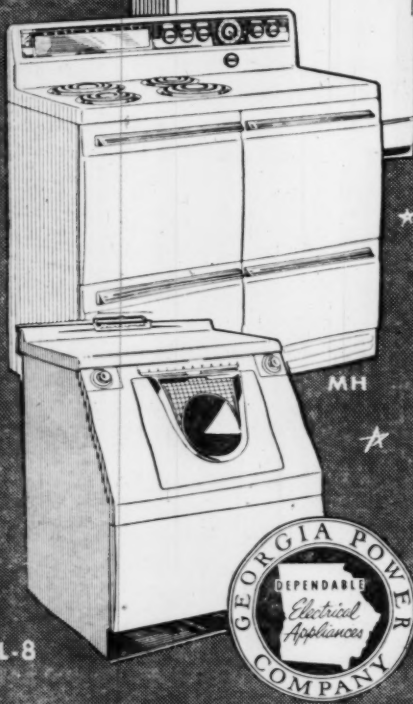

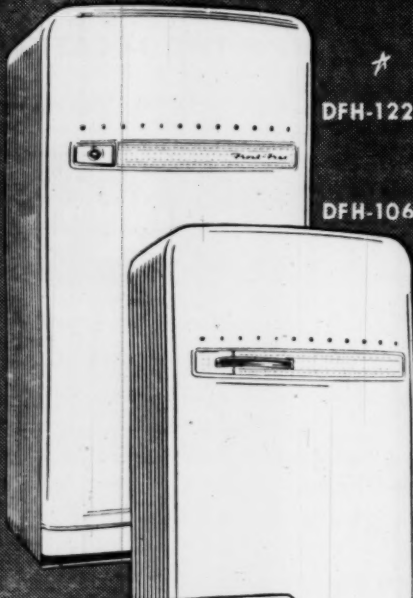

Kitchen Lighting

One of the most important aspects of good kitchen planning is proper lighting. All work areas should have good overhead lighting that doesn't cast shadows. Lighting arrangements should be checked each time a new appliance is installed, specialists say.

ATOMIC SCIENCE—Is helping with your washing. Makers of home laundry equipment are working to get clothes cleaner, faster and easier. Here is a peek inside one of the company laboratories. The girls are working with pieces of cloth before and after they have been put through the washing machines. Radioactive materials have been mixed with the dirt which has been used to soil the cloth. That dirt can be tracked by the radioactive "tags."

Christmas Can Be A Rainbow of Color

But many other customers still demand white appliances—and get them. That does not mean they must have white kitchens. Decorations in many colorful accents blend effectively with white enamel and frequently are used to lend a brighter touch to the kitchens.

Your own choice rules in many other ways.

MOST WOMEN prefer to put the laundry on the first floor. In many of the new homes, large kitchens permit washers and dryers to be built in under the counters. Washing and cooking can go on at the same time.

In older homes, back porches, pantries and even breakfast rooms are being converted into laundries.

Other laundries are found in the basement. Sometimes they are complete with television set, and the old stove is moved down when the new one is installed. Coffee and soup can be heated for lunch and eaten on the work table.

In other homes, the wandering laundry is sometimes found on the second floor. Most of the laundry

When you get your White Christmas, it may turn out to be a rainbow.

The White Christmas of Operation Snowflake derives its snowy color from the gleaming enamel on home appliances that families all over the country are buying and planning to buy. But your wishes rule in color as in other things. Colored appliances are ready for you if you want them.

Also there are appliances to fit the kind of house you have or the kind you want to create. You may find space for them on the second floor, the first floor or in the basement.

Temperature Is Measured To Precision

Rival merchants dispute about whose appliance will serve you best, but on one thing they agree. Modern appliances are designed to give you more accurate regulation of heat and cold.

Stove burners, ovens, broilers, dryers, washers, water heaters and other heated devices deliver the precise amount of heat you want when you want it.

The amount of heat needed is sometimes very small. Again, you may require large amounts in a hurry. Inventors have equipped most appliances with regulating devices and heat indicators, and heat-making parts have been refined to improve performance.
